200 DROWNED AS SHIP SINKS

Today

Uncle Sam Has No India.

The Atheist Folly.

Too Little, Then Too Much.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

BRITAIN will do anything to maintain her property and prestige in China, because she must.

Three hundred million Asiatics ruled by Britain in India are watching China, and asking themselves "if four hundred million Asiatic can drive the British out of China, why can not we drive them out of India?

Because her prestige in Asia and throughout the empire requires it, Britain will do whatever she must to hold her position at trade and localized authority in China, under treaties long recognized. And the British war department will bomb the Chinese, use all modern war methods, if argument fails.

But what about this country? There is no must for us. We have no empire in Asia staked on our ability to coerce China. Some big oil interests are involved, but those could be bought off, for less than any little war could cost.

France and Japan show us what should be done. Japan will protest against actions of the Chinese mobs, but use no force, that is the latest announcement. France will look on, let Britain attend to China, with the help of this country, if we are fools enough to create a serious quarrel with an unfortunate country, torn by revolution and civil war.

We are friendly to Great Britain, and should like to co-operate with the British in maintaining world peace. But we are, let us hope, not going to start a Chinese war, to solidify British prestige in India. Britain has great influence here. Our biggest international banking institution, as much British as it is American, and owing the revival of its furtunes to England and the big war, has great influence with our national administration.

Millions of Americans that would pay the bills, business men of this country whose prosperity unnecessary war would menace, are interested in this Chinese question.

In the big war we pulled chestnuts out of the fire for all Europe, to the tune of ten billions sent abroad and fifty billions spent, squandered and grafted at home.

Are we going to spend more billions, kill more men, because Britain needs to beat China, to preserve her Asiatic prestige, and Indian empire?

The British government it is said, urging this country to join in coercing China, "finds our attitude disappointing vague." Let's hope our attitude will become definite and take this form:

No thanks. We are not professional, incurable chestnut pullers. We intend to protect our own citizens, by taking

One of Ferry Fleets.

The Daihachi was one of the regular passenger boats plying into Fusan.

Japanese steamer agents were expressed belief the ship was one of a regular ferry fleet operating between Shimo on Seki, on one of the islands in the Japanese archipelago, and Fusan, on the extreme tip of Korea. This passage is through the Korean straits and is said to be one of the roughest stretches of water in the Pacific ocean.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS:

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, is a somewhat colorless little girl, who works in the mailing room of a printing and bookbinding establishment. She and the office boy have been seen holding hands—otherwise there has been no romance in her life. One day a girl who had formerly worked in the mailing room comes to call. Her name is

LUCILLE OVERMAN, and she is now working in pictures. She takes Hattie to the studio where she, Lucille, is to have a screen test. Hattie there is seen by the famous director,

DE BRISSAC, who makes a screen test of her and offers her a contract. Hattie lives with her married sister,

ALICE, and her baby daughter, Emily, and

GRANDMA, a querulous semi-invalid. They all start for California with De Brissac; who suggests books for Hattie to read to "form her mind." On the train she meets

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. They arrive at Beverly. Hattie goes to the studio to find De Brissac, and he kisses her. Clandestinely, so that De Brissac will not know, Hattie and O'Malley meet and go out together. A dark little girl comes to Hattie's dressing room, saying it used to be hers. De Brissac wants Hattie to go away for a week with him on his yacht. The little dark girl comes to his office while Hattie is there and tries to throw acid on her, but De Brissac prevents her, although his hand is burned. Hattie tries to tell Alice that she can't go back to De Brissac's studio to work, but her sister tells her they need more money and that she must stick to her contract. She refuses to go to De Brissac's office again after work and meets O'Malley and goes to dinner with him. O'Malley wants Hattie to leave De Brissac and try for work in another studio. He tells her that he is crazy about her.

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

"I've tried to fight this off," continued Henry. "Ever since we first talked on the train. Remember? I really haven't any business thinking about marriage, with every cent tied up in my experiment—"

"I know," she breathed, trying to hold back an exultant smile.

"—but when your thoughts are full of a girl, when you're clean off your head about her, what's a fellow going to do?" His words were rushing now. Nervously he turned a fork over and over and over; stared down at it as he talked. "You see, I've got some capital interested here in L. A. And there's some men up in San Francisco that say they want to talk with me as soon as I can get up there. I'm going up Saturday. The unexpected sweep of this new radio business has got 'em all on the run, even the very men that laughed at me last year. Oh, I wish to God I had the thing all put across, nailed down, so that I could take you right out of this dam' picture game and put you in a lovely home in Pasadena. This is no life for a dear little girl like you. I've been through it. I know. You can't tell me a thing . . . . Hattie, I can't ask you to marry me right away, but will you tell me I can take you on as a responsibility and straighten things out for you—get you away from that man? We needn't say anything to anyone just yet. But we could understand each other and I could work for you. And the minute I get the capital lined up and the company formed we could be married. Will you tell me that you are with me? Think how it would stimulate me—give me the courage to go on fighting for the big things."

He reached across the table and gripped her hands. The tears welled up to her eyes; she musn't cry, not here in this public place. She felt all warm and soft. Then fear came, and she couldn't help glancing out under her wet lashes about the room. What if Mr. de Brissac should walk in on them. He might, as easily as not. Or someone who would tell him . . . . . Should she tell Henry about him—about his kisses, about her narrow escape. The unhappy thought came that only the accident had saved her. And that wouldn't be character on her part; it would be nothing more noble than fright. She knew that, saw it painfully clear before her mind's eye. Even before that, she couldn't have resisted him. He had told her repeatedly in that startling point blank way of his that he preferred not to risk carrying her too far emotionally until the picture was finished. His shadow lay over this table even while Henry ardently pressed her hands.

"Hattie, will you promise to marry me?"

And then that warm pressure brought hope. Henry was so nice; not one of the careless men—Beverly seemed sometimes, like New York, to be full of those—but a dreamer, an enthusiast. It would be wonderful to be married . . . . A way out . . .

"What if it shouldn't work out?" Her voice was husky and thin.

"It's got to work out."

"I'm thinking of Alice and Emily—and Gran'ma."

"They're all dependent on you?"

"Yes."

"Oh, that isn't right."

"But that's the way it is. And I dragged them all out here. And gran'ma's sick so much—the doctors and everything. If it shouldn't work out . . . ."

"I tell you it's got to. It's a shame that you have to work at all. But I tell you, Hattie, if you will stick with me I'll see that you don't have to work much longer. Probably not more than another picture. You see, with you back of me I'll have the pep to go out and fight all Wall Street. It isn't as if I didn't—men have swung the capital before now—why some of the biggest fellows in the picture business started without a cent not ten years ago. And I've got the goods. I can show them. . . . Hattie, will you promise to marry me?"

There was a long silence. He was still pressing her hands. She began not to care whether anyone noticed them or not. That softness which had been tinged with unhappiness like a haunt was a glow now that enveloped her. Soon he would have the capital. And anyway, even if all his dreams couldn't come true, why shouldn't she just go out and marry him? They could doubtless help somewhat with the family. And Alice, if she did pick up a job, at least would have one fewer mouth to feed. Gran'ma might come and live with them part of the time. Reasons, justifications, came rushing into her mind. Didn't she have her own life to live? Was it fair for all of them to plump down on her, keep her in the dreary routine of the studio, fairly drive her to de Brissac?

She whispered—

"Yes."

Then the waiter came. But later, in his little car, down by the boundless sea, he took her in his arms and kissed her as he now had a right to do. And she found herself clinging to him, returning his kisses. But an unforseen fear came. Would he wonder that she could be so ardent? Would he suspect? . . . She was more restrained after that thought. And she made him take her home early. She was utterly tired.

He was kind. But he talked and talked about the radio pictures. He said he wanted her to understand his work. She felt, too, that she must. But it was hard, nestling against him, fighting off a new sort of dizzy weakness and grateful for the chill night air on her temples, to catch more than the eager note in his voice as he talked on. It was a nice voice.

She promised to bring her contract in the morning. It was in her top bureau drawer.

DINNER STORIES.

Little Roberta knew very little about death. She had never been to a funeral, but there was a cemetery nearby where she used to wander in search of violets in the spring. Now Roberta had a small kitten, "Johanna," which was very sickly and it finally died. Roberta wept copiously and refused to be comforted until her uncle promised to bury the cat in the back yard. He made a gravestone for the departed pet, then asked his small niece what she wished written on it. The youngster hurried to the cemetery then returned to give the following instructions.

"Write this," she directed. "Here lies the fur part of Johanna. The rest is in heaven. Johanna was a good cat."

Doing His Duty.

On the concert program of one of the larger New York orchestras not long since was Beethoven's "Leonore" overture, the two climaxes of which each are followed by a trumpet passage offstage. The first climax came, but not a sound from the trumpet.

The conductor, considerably annoyed, went on to the second. Again there was silence. This time the overture being finished, he rushed into the wings.

There he found the trumpet player still arguing with the house fireman

"I tell you, you can't play that thing back there!" the latter was saying. "There's a concert going on."

Oldsmobile Uses Cadmium Plating On External Bolts

Cadmicum plating is being used by Oldsmobile on all external bolts, nuts, washers and screws to prevent rust spots forming. This latest improvement, which has just been placed in production, is another of those features Oldsmobile engineers have perfected to improve the appearance and add to the life of Oldsmobiles.

The cadmicmu used for the plating is a white, malleable, ductile metal found in the comparatively rare mineral greenockite. One of its principal uses heretofore has been the manufacture of amalgam for teeth filling It is rust and corrosion proof, and, being comparatively soft, it does not crack as would a hard plating when the bolts and screws are tightened by hard and sharp tools such as screw drivers and wrenches.

In the past it has been the general practice in the industry to enamel or nickle the screws, bolts, washers and nuts used to fasten the fenders, dust aprons and tire carriers of the body of the car. Under this former method there was a tendency for the enamel or nickel to crack and chip off, leaving a space of bare metal on which rust quickly formed.

There are two pairs of sweethearts in the story, Kitty and her Irish cop and Rosie who loves a Jewish doctor. The trouble starts when Kitty decides to punish her lover and annexes a new beau in the person of the Jewish doctor. This is the call to arms for the entire Irish and Jewish settlement on Avenue A, and an issue for civil war in the Kelly and Feinbaum homes where the two girls are in disgrace over their choice of prospective husbands. However, the story has a novel twist and the solution to the tangled love affair is a smashing surprise.

Safe Driving Campaign Results

East Liverpool motorists seemingly profited by the lessons taught in the Review-Tribune's Safe Driving campaign last week, in which the Columbiana County Motor club and the police department co-operated, for no serious traffic accidents were reported over the week-end.

Other sections of Ohio, however, were not so fortunate. Four persons were killed, one of them an East Palestine patrolman, and nine injured, at least one seriously, over the state yesterday. Two deaths resulted when cars plunged down embankments, another as a result of a machine crashing against a tree, while the fourth fatality was attributed to the so-called "road hog."

As the Ceramic City has learned, safe driving pays. Comparatively few accidents occur when motorists comply with speed limits, obey traffic signals and remember that pedestrians have some rights.

All credit for the reduction in the traffic toll, however, does not belong to the automobile driver. No small share of it is the street car operator's. And in compiling honor rolls motormen should not be overlooked. This is especially true on the Grandview division of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company's lines, for trolley car operators must keep their eyes open in negotiating turns at Broadway and Sixth street, Walnut and Sixth streets and the Walnut and Avondale crossings on Bradshaw avenue. Their vigilance has averted many accidents at these interesections.

Let's not forget the lessons of Safe Driving Week.

"Master Criminals"

A veteran sheriff who has known many thousands of criminals says of them:

"I am convinced that all crooks are cowards at heart. And there is no such thing as a smart crook. These so-called 'master mind' criminals exist only in the story books. A man with brains knows it doesn't pay to commit crimes.

"My experience shows that gun bravery is the only kind ever displayed by crooks. Take their weapons away, and they are tame indeed."

Most practical men who have been able to observe closely the criminal population filing through our jails and courts seem to hold about the same view. The clever, masterly criminal is a creature of literary imagination. When we do seem to see such criminals at long intervals functioning in real life, and coming into court with a sort of glamor about them when they are brought to bay, the glamor is still largely literary—a product of publicity. Enterprising reporters, vying with novelists and dramatists to make such characters as interesting as possible, do their best with the material they have. Yet between the lines can usually be read the fact that the celebrated prisoner is, after all, pretty shallow, and seems brilliant only in comparison with his more stupid brethren.

That "gun bravery" the sheriff speaks of is a real thing. These weaklings and social misfits are brave only when they have a deadly weapon in their hands, and their victims have not. Here is a fact which lends still more force to the wide-spread demand for the disarmament of criminals, which can be accomplished only by disarming all who have no legitimate use for weapons.

Malaria as Medicine

"Benign malaria" is what doctors call the disease caused by the bite of the anopheles mosquito. And benign it is, sure enough, as used nowadays for the cure of one of the most dreaded of diseases.

The new treatment of paresis, or softing of the brain, is one of the most remarkable things in the history of medicine. It was discovered somehow that paresis patients improved when they contracted malaria. Sometimes the lesser disease seems to work a complete cure of the greater. Physicians therefore are treating paretic cases in many parts of the United States by inoculating the patient with malaria germs of the right sort.

One of the most curious things about this curious treatment is that the benevolent fever germs have to be carried in a human bottle. They will remain alive only in the human blood stream. So a novel occupation develops. Persons with malaria in their systems are sent to provide enough of their malaria-laden blood, fresh and effective, for injection into the veins of paretics. Or paretic patients are brought to a hospital possessing an authentic malaria case, for a blood transfusion.

It may be that this method of curing one disease with another can be carried much further. More revelations along this line will be awaited with interest.

A Chinaman named Mah, a former officer of the Cantonese government, is in this country studying labor and commerce. Now, where's Jongg?

What automobiles need now, more than anything else, is rubber fenders that will give without crumpling and spring back into place as good as ever.

China has done 'most everything else at some time or other in the last 4,000 years, but this seems to be the first time she's gone democratic.

A Practical Use for the Blame Books— By Fontaine Fox

BOTH BEGAN WITH AN O.

The poor traffic cop was out of temper. All day at the bridge entrance he had contended with motorists, truck drivers and teamsters who, through confusion or plain stupidity, disregarded his signals.

Presently along came a stubborn person on top of a moving wagon, who got everything snarled up. This individual appeared to know nothing about the rules of the road. He had to be informed on fundamentals and he also had the points of the compass designated for him with some sarcasm. On top of all this he started forward on one whistle instead of two.

The cop backed him and as he unbuttoned his coat to produce his pencil and notebook, asked:

"What's your name?"

"It's on the side of me van. I own this outfit. You kid read it there."

The policeman moved alongside to view some boards plastered with mud and said:

"It's obliterated."

"Yer a liar," answered the offender belligerently. "It's O'Brien."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and received a pleasant telegram from Nellie Revell out in California and a dozen other birthday greetings or I would have forgotten the gloomy truth. I am past 40, gray and not so spry. And a letter from E. W. Howe saying he is en route to the city.

So to Dr. Campbell, my dentist, and so happy my molars needed no tinkering I settled my account of a year or more and took him off to lunch at the Voisin and saw among others there Natacha Rambova, Regina Wallace, and Dr. George Dorsey.

Walked among the huge mansions on upper Park Avenue and wondered how a man could live content in a 50-room house, and so home and at my typewriter until Ed Nolan, Will Hogg and Grace Morse came and all of us to Lindy's, a theatrical cafe. Then early to bed.

This chorus girl protection nonsense has gone about far enough. A press agent blurbs that a certain theater has opened a mother's room—for mamas of chorines who fear to permit their darlings to go to the theater unchaperoned. The dangers besetting a Broadway chorus girl journeying along to the theater are equivalent to those facing elderly spinsters attending a Christmas cantata at Three Forks, Neb., on a rainy afternoon. Hundreds of chorus girls go to and from the theater nightly and those not patently flirtatious are no more bothered by stage door Johns or other pavement sheiks than the average girl repulsing such advances. Cheap sports in search of amorous sidewalk conquests are not looking for ladies of the ensemble. They are entirely too expensive.

Incidentally the curb flirts who roam Fifth avenue in their autos in search of pulchritudinous pickups have been almost entirely squelched. It was an old story of setting a thief to catch a thief. A band of singularly adroit ladies made the avenue their rendezvous and found the "pickings" literally just perfectly dandy. They accepted advances, nor would they object to impromptu snuggling parties in a whirl through the park on the way to their addresses. And a little later the Romeos would discover the loss of their wallets and watches. It was the sort of pilfering they would hesitate to relate to the police. But it cured many of curb conquests.

One of those impudently youthful playwright with a tidy technique for sarcasm was greeted at tea the other afternoon by a society lady who made a serious excursion into the films. Said she: "I saw you play last night but I didn't laugh once."

"That's strange," he replied. "I saw your film and laughed all the time. Now let's split a beaker of cocaine and be friends."

Those rare modern who are reputed to breakfast on cocktails at sundown, inhabit the potted woods of night clubs and are everlastingly dancing, have found a final stop off for their nightly pleasures. It is a little breakfast room in the East Fifties that opens at 5:30 a. m., and has a dance orchestra.

And the merriest touch of all in this place is the inspiration of an alert headache powder manufacturer who has placed a large glass bowl filled with free samples of his powders in the entrance hall.

Effect of Broadway drama is noted in a cafe nearby where the menu card announces: "Potatoes in the nude."

An idea of the Broadway improvisation on gossip. In a night club recently a lady in a party saw a caricature on the wall she desired. So in a boydenish manner she swiped it. A dozen times I have heard of an angry wife storming there to tear her husband's caricature from the wall.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Hudson River Bridge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11. — Everything that is superlative in bridges will be combined in the new Hudson river structure that is to connect Fort Washington in Upper Manhattan and Fort Lee on the New Jersey side of the river. It will be the world's longest suspension bridge it will be the product of the greatest genius there is in bridge building, it will be the most expensive structure of its kind, and it will probably accommodate the greatest amount of traffic of any bridge in the world.

It will have a span almost two-thirds of a mile in length, it will cost $50,000,000 or more, and when it is opened to the public in 1932 it is expected that during the first year it will be used by more than 8,000,000 vehicles that carry almost 19,000,000 passengers, by 1,500,000 pedestrians, and by almost 500,000 buses. This traffic will produce an annual revenue in excess of $5,000,000, with toll rates averaging 50 cents each for pleasure cars and trucks, $1 each for buses, and 5 cents for each pedestrian and each passenger carried in a vehicle.

When the bridge is ready to take up its share of the burden of getting people in and out of New York it will have two 24-foot roadways that will each accommodate two to three lanes of travel and two 6-foot sidewalks. Its annual traffic capacity then will be 10,000,000 vehicles.

Later this capacity may be doubled by the opening of an additional 40-foot central roadway that will accommodate four lanes of travel, and a lower deck is projected that can carry four electric railroad tracks. This increasing the capacity of the bridge will also increase its cost by almost a third, running the total up to approximately $65,000,000.

Work To Be Begun May 1.

Actual construction work on the giant structure will be begun May 1. It has been announced, and it is expected that five full years will be required to complete it. The first work that will be undertaken will be the foundations for the two legs of the 86,000,000 tower at the Jersey end. These foundations must be sunk 100 feet to bed rock, and some idea of their size may be conveyed when it is said that a modern ten-story apartment building could be dropped out of sight in the holes that will be excavated for them.

The towers, and those at the Manhattan end as well, will be 650 feet high—almost 100 feet higher than the Washington monument. They will carry the cable that will support a central span 3,500 feet long and of a dead weight of 120,000 tons of steel at an average height of about 200 feet above the river. Engineers say that carrying this tremendous load is not only structurally possible but is well within the structural possibilities which they place at 10,000 feet or more. Thus a two-mile suspension bridge may be one of the engineering triumphs of the future.

The new bridge will be twice the length of the new Delaware river bridge, its nearest competitor in point of size, and if it develops traffic proportionately as has the Delaware bridge no time will be lost in enlarging its capacity to the maximum. The Delaware bridge which connects the cities of Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., is already carrying twice the volume of traffic that was estimated for it.

The towers of the Hudson structure are to be of steel, later to be filled in with solid masonry. The anchorage on the New Jersey shore will be in the solid rock of the Palisades, and each cable will have its individual rock chamber which at the mouth will be about as large as a subway tube. No natural rock is available for the anchorage on the Manhattan side, so it will be an artificial mass of granite and concrete.

Abe Martin Says--

Tell Binkley thought he heard th' rustle of a skirt t'day, but it wuz a feller wearin' a pair o' new overalls.

Those who've seen Aimee McPherson seem rather inclined t' believe she wuz kidnapped, but they don't believe she walked back.

In the building of suspension bridges the first problem in connection with the bridge itself is to establish a continuous connection through the air from shore to shore. In the days of old this was frequently accomplished by attaching a thread to an arrow which was shot across the stream, and then by successive changes this thread was superseded by a cable of steel. Safe Driving Campaign Results

East Liverpool motorists seemingly profited by the lessons taught in the Review-Tribune's Safe Driving campaign last week, in which the Columbiana County Motor club and the police department co-operated, for no serious traffic accidents were reported over the week-end.

Other sections of Ohio, however, were not so fortunate. Four persons were killed, one of them an East Palestine patrolman, and nine injured, at least one seriously, over the state yesterday. Two deaths resulted when cars plunged down embankments, another as a result of a machine crashing against a tree, while the fourth fatality was attributed to the so-called "road hog."

As the Ceramic City has learned, safe driving pays. Comparatively few accidents occur when motorists comply with speed limits, obey traffic signals and remember that pedestrians have some rights.

All credit for the reduction in the traffic toll, however, does not belong to the automobile driver. No small share of it is the street car operator's. And in compiling honor rolls motormen should not be overlooked. This is especially true on the Grandview division of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company's lines, for trolley car operators must keep their eyes open in negotiating turns at Broadway and Sixth street, Walnut and Sixth streets and the Walnut and Avondale crossings on Bradshaw avenue. Their vigilance has averted many accidents at these interesections.

Let's not forget the lessons of Safe Driving Week.

"Master Criminals"

A veteran sheriff who has known many thousands of criminals says of them:

"I am convinced that all crooks are cowards at heart. And there is no such thing as a smart crook. These so-called 'master mind' criminals exist only in the story books. A man with brains knows it doesn't pay to commit crimes.

"My experience shows that gun bravery is the only kind ever displayed by crooks. Take their weapons away, and they are tame indeed."

Most practical men who have been able to observe closely the criminal population filing through our jails and courts seem to hold about the same view. The clever, masterly criminal is a creature of literary imagination. When we do seem to see such criminals at long intervals functioning in real life, and coming into court with a sort of glamor about them when they are brought to bay, the glamor is still largely literary—a product of publicity. Enterprising reporters, vying with novelists and dramatists to make such characters as interesting as possible, do their best with the material they have. Yet between the lines can usually be read the fact that the celebrated prisoner is, after all, pretty shallow, and seems brilliant only in comparison with his more stupid brethren.

That "gun bravery" the sheriff speaks of is a real thing. These weaklings and social misfits are brave only when they have a deadly weapon in their hands, and their victims have not. Here is a fact which lends still more force to the wide-spread demand for the disarmament of criminals, which can be accomplished only by disarming all who have no legitimate use for weapons.

Malaria as Medicine

"Benign malaria" is what doctors call the disease caused by the bite of the anopheles mosquito. And benign it is, sure enough, as used nowadays for the cure of one of the most dreaded of diseases.

The new treatment of paresis, or softing of the brain, is one of the most remarkable things in the history of medicine. It was discovered somehow that paresis patients improved when they contracted malaria. Sometimes the lesser disease seems to work a complete cure of the greater. Physicians therefore are treating paretic cases in many parts of the United States by inoculating the patient with malaria germs of the right sort.

One of the most curious things about this curious treatment is that the benevolent fever germs have to be carried in a human bottle. They will remain alive only in the human blood stream. So a novel occupation develops. Persons with malaria in their systems are sent to provide enough of their malaria-laden blood, fresh and effective, for injection into the veins of paretics. Or paretic patients are brought to a hospital possessing an authentic malaria case, for a blood transfusion.

It may be that this method of curing one disease with another can be carried much further. More revelations along this line will be awaited with interest.

What automobiles need now, more than anything else, is rubber fenders that will give without crumpling and spring back into place as good as ever.

BOTH BEGAN WITH AN O.

The poor traffic cop was out of temper. All day at the bridge entrance he had contended with motorists, truck drivers and teamsters who, through confusion or plain stupidity, disregarded his signals.

Presently along came a stubborn person on top of a moving wagon, who got everything snarled up. This individual appeared to know nothing about the rules of the road. He had to be informed on fundamentals and he also had the points of the compass designated for him with some sarcasm. On top of all this he started forward on one whistle instead of two.

The cop backed him and as he unbuttoned his coat to produce his pencil and notebook, asked:

"What's your name?"

"It's on the side of me van. I own this outfit. You kid read it there."

The policeman moved alongside to view some boards plastered with mud and said:

"It's obliterated."

"Yer a liar," answered the offender belligerently. "It's O'Brien."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and received a pleasant telegram from Nellie Revell out in California and a dozen other birthday greetings or I would have forgotten the gloomy truth. I am past 40, gray and not so spry. And a letter from E. W. Howe saying he is en route to the city.

So to Dr. Campbell, my dentist, and so happy my molars needed no tinkering I settled my account of a year or more and took him off to lunch at the Voisin and saw among others there Natacha Rambova, Regina Wallace, and Dr. George Dorsey.

Walked among the huge mansions on upper Park Avenue and wondered how a man could live content in a 50-room house, and so home and at my typewriter until Ed Nolan, Will Hogg and Grace Morse came and all of us to Lindy's, a theatrical cafe. Then early to bed.

This chorus girl protection nonsense has gone about far enough. A press agent blurbs that a certain theater has opened a mother's room—for mamas of chorines who fear to permit their darlings to go to the theater unchaperoned. The dangers besetting a Broadway chorus girl journeying along to the theater are equivalent to those facing elderly spinsters attending a Christmas cantata at Three Forks, Neb., on a rainy afternoon. Hundreds of chorus girls go to and from the theater nightly and those not patently flirtatious are no more bothered by stage door Johns or other pavement sheiks than the average girl repulsing such advances. Cheap sports in search of amorous sidewalk conquests are not looking for ladies of the ensemble. They are entirely too expensive.

Incidentally the curb flirts who roam Fifth avenue in their autos in search of pulchritudinous pickups have been almost entirely squelched. It was an old story of setting a thief to catch a thief. A band of singularly adroit ladies made the avenue their rendezvous and found the "pickings" literally just perfectly dandy. They accepted advances, nor would they object to impromptu snuggling parties in a whirl through the park on the way to their addresses. And a little later the Romeos would discover the loss of their wallets and watches. It was the sort of pilfering they would hesitate to relate to the police. But it cured many of curb conquests.

One of those impudently youthful playwright with a tidy technique for sarcasm was greeted at tea the other afternoon by a society lady who made a serious excursion into the films. Said she: "I saw you play last night but I didn't laugh once."

"That's strange," he replied. "I saw your film and laughed all the time. Now let's split a beaker of cocaine and be friends."

Those rare modern who are reputed to breakfast on cocktails at sundown, inhabit the potted woods of night clubs and are everlastingly dancing, have found a final stop off for their nightly pleasures. It is a little breakfast room in the East Fifties that opens at 5:30 a. m., and has a dance orchestra.

And the merriest touch of all in this place is the inspiration of an alert headache powder manufacturer who has placed a large glass bowl filled with free samples of his powders in the entrance hall.

Effect of Broadway drama is noted in a cafe near where the menu card announces: "Potatoes in the nude."

An idea of the Broadway improvisation on gossip. In a night club recently a lady in a party saw a caricature on the wall she desired. So in a boydenish manner she swiped it. A dozen times I have heard of an angry wife storming there to tear her husband's caricature from the wall.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Hudson River Bridge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—Everything that is superlative in bridges will be combined in the new Hudson river structure that is to connect Fort Washington in Upper Manhattan and Fort Lee on the New Jersey side of the river. It will be the world's longest suspension bridge it will be the product of the greatest genius there is in bridge building, it will be the most expensive structure of its kind, and it will probably accommodate the greatest amount of traffic of any bridge in the world.

It will have a span almost two-thirds of a mile in length, it will cost $59,000,000 or more, and when it is opened to the public in 1932 it is expected that during the first year it will be used by more than 8,000,000 vehicles that carry almost 19,000,000 passengers, by 1,500,000 pedestrians, and by almost 500,000 buses. This traffic will produce an annual revenue in excess of $5,000,000, with toll rates averaging 50 cents each for pleasure cars and trucks, $1 each for buses, and 5 cents for each pedestrian and each passenger carried in a vehicle.

When the bridge is ready to take up its share of the burden of getting people in and out of New York it will have two 24-foot roadways that will each accommodate two to three lanes of travel and two 6-foot sidewalks. Its annual traffic capacity then will be 10,000,000 vehicles.

Later this capacity may be doubled by the opening of an additional 40-foot central roadway that will accommodate four lanes of travel, and a lower deck is projected that can carry four electric railroad tracks. This increasing the capacity of the bridge will also increase its cost by almost a third, running the total up to approximately $65,000,000.

Work To Be Begun May 1.

Actual construction work on the giant structure will be begun May 1. It has been announced, and it is expected that five full years will be required to complete it. The first work that will be undertaken will be the foundations for the two legs of the 86,000,000 tower at the Jersey end. These foundations must be sunk 100 feet to bed rock, and some idea of their size may be conveyed when it is said that a modern ten-story apartment building could be dropped out of sight in the holes that will be excavated for them.

The towers, and those at the Manhattan end as well, will be 650 feet high—almost 100 feet higher than the Washington monument. They will carry the cable that will support a central span 3,500 feet long and of a dead weight of 120,000 tons of steel at an average height of about 200 feet above the river. Engineers say that carrying this tremendous load is not only structurally possible but is well within the structural possibilities which they place at 10,000 feet or more. Thus a two-mile suspension bridge may be one of the engineering triumphs of the future.

The new bridge will be twice the length of the new Delaware river bridge, its nearest competitor in point of size, and if it develops traffic proportionately as has the Delaware bridge no time will be lost in enlarging its capacity to the maximum. The Delaware bridge which connects the cities of Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., is already carrying twice the volume of traffic that was estimated for it.

The towers of the Hudson structure are to be of steel, later to be filled in with solid masonry. The anchorage on the New Jersey shore will be in the solid rock of the Palisades, and each cable will have its individual rock chamber which at the mouth will be about as large as a subway tube. No natural rock is available for the anchorage on the Manhattan side, so it will be an artificial mass of granite and concrete.

In the building of suspension bridges the first problem in connection with the bridge itself is to establish a continuous connection through the air from shore to shore. In the days of old this was frequently accomplished by attaching a thread to an arrow which was shot across the stream, and then by successive changes this thread was superseded by a cable of steel. When the suspension bridge was built across the Niagara river by Roebling it was found necessary because of the nature of the Niagara gorge to use a kite.

Boats Will Be Utilized.

But neither the arrow nor the kite will be utilized in effecting the air connection over the Hudson. The first would be impossible, as there has never been a bow or bowman that could shoot an arrow more than two-thirds of a mile, and the second is impracticable. Instead boats will be used, and with these and shore winches wire ropes will be strung across the river from tower to tower, first resting on the bed of the river, and then being hoisted to the tops of the towers.

These wire ropes become the support of temporary working platforms known as footwalks, of which there must be one for each cable to be installed. Footwalks are made of sections of cleated plank, and each section is slid down the pair of supporting ropes into position. In order to

Signs of the Times—Have Them Made to Order at Trainer's

"—— And let the rest of the world go by."

You've heard the song. It sounds good, but it's all wrong. Don't do it! If you're in business, if you've something to sell, you can't afford to let the rest of the world go by!

Stop them, bring them in, sell them something they need and you'll both profit. You can't sandbag them, of course, but you don't have to. Just a bit of a paint brush, in the fingers of Les Trainer, can turn the trick. Advertising . . . there's the pull that brings the public to your values.

But it must be natural . . . natural as a baby's smile and just as attractive and unaffected.

And that requires true artistry and command. With both of these, as well as considerable experience in his business, Trainer, who less than a year year ago embarked "on his own," has established a rapidly growing business.

He is helping to make the "signs of the times," big ones, small ones, all kinds, for outside and inside, highly decorative placards, or just plain lettering, as your needs prescribe.

You'll find him at his shop, in Green Lane, a block from the Diamond, or at his phone, 1466-M, for estimates.

Adam and Craig Can Help You in Buying Your New Homesite

The task of buying a home, although it's really not a task . . . more like a mission of joy, is nevertheless a proposition conducive of more or less worry, especially when the prospective home owner is embarking on his first venture in real estate.

Consequently, when the services and advice of a reputable dealer in real estate are always available, the first step of the man who expects to buy should be to confer with the dealer and get started on the right foot.

Adam and Craig, Sixth street, have operated a real estate and insurance firm here for a number of years and a resume of their accomplishments is first-class proof of their business ability.

Adam and Craig are agents for the Gaston Place allotment, on the California Hollow road, where a number of excellent home sites are available away from the noise, clamor and dirt of the city proper, and yet within reach of practically all modern facilities.

In addition they ordinarily have a number of other good opportunities in real estate and homes. They may be able to help you. Give them a ring—Main 263.

Pastry Dessert, From Newell System Bake Shop, "Makes" Meal

Just as no automobile would be complete without all four wheels, or a cloud without its silver lining, or a flapper without her lipstick, no well regulated, hunger satisfying, taste tempting meal or luncheon can be complete without its dessert, and why not make it pastry?

How about some delicious fruit tarts, or lady fingers and ice cream, a cream puff, or macaroons, or perhaps cholocate eclaires of a quality such as has made the Newell System bakery a mecca for those busy housewives who would rather buy than cook it themselves and at the same time save money?

The Newell System Bakery, in the Diamond, widely known for its bread, also . . . the "bread that makes the butterfly," can supply you in all these needs, as well as other delectable dinner and luncheon accessories such as gingerbread, pie, cake, cookies, Parkerhouse rolls, coffee cake and other tidbits.

And don't forget, this is Hot Cross Bun week. You can get them at the Newell System Bakery.

Local Firm Can Save You a Dollar a Ton On Sand and Gravel

Distance lends enchantment, as the adage goes, but, as a general rule, it costs more and doesn't make the object in question any better after all, whether it's shoelaces and hairpins or sand and gravel.

And speaking of the latter, it's an actual fact that folks here, buying from the East Liverpool Sand Co., can save a whole dollar on the ton. Prices being equal (and the local concern's are as reasonable as any of them) it'll cost you about 70 cents a ton freight and 30 cents more for handling, to buy out of town.

Because of this saving, plus good service and quality materials, the local firm is supplying the new Laughlin plant and will handle the E. M. Knowles work.

In addition they're supplying a Pennsylvania highway project, the West Virginia end of the road through Chester to Pittsburgh, the California Hollow road, as well as jobs in the Youngstown district and elsewhere.

Their product, brought from the bottom of the Ohio, by a modern bucket ladder dredge, is thoroughly washed and screened. It is sent out from a 24-car siding at the plant in West Second street, and local delivery is made through a four-truck fleet. They'll send you sand, gravel and cement all in one load—a big advantage.

Swiss Watch Repair Exclusive Feature Of Prescott's Shop

Factory experience, obtainable nowhere but at the factory, the actual source, plus years of training in the general jewelry repairing, an exclusive service on Swiss watches, together with native ability and business character, are, summed up briefly, the principal reasons for the remarkable growth of the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop, 704 St. Clair avenue, established less than a year ago.

Prescott brings to the city, following his factory work, a skill in watch repairing obtained at the Elgin and Illinois plants and with Ralph Lazarus, New York importer of Swiss watches. As a result, it is not necessary now, in reference to the latter, to send work out of town for competent repair attention.

Prescott is a diamond setter, remodels old type jewelry to conform with the latest styles, designs jewelry to order and repairs Westminster chime clocks, having taken a special course in this.

He is able to buy direct from the factory, reducing costs to an amazing extent, a small overhead also contributing to a savings.

Your work, at Prescott's is certain of careful, skillful attention.

Cain Machine Co., in Business Here for More Than 26 Years

An unmatchable personnel of directing officers, of character and integrity, as well as a reputation built of perfection in their products and their work over a period of 26 years or more, combine to establish the Cain Machine Company, machinists and engineers, as one of the leading industrial organizations of its kind in eastern Ohio.

Just as the proof of the pudding is in the eating, the proof of their efficiency, especially in the pottery machine line, is seen in the fact that their work is shipped to practically all parts of the United States and points in Canada, as well.

The Cain Brothers Company was organized in 1901 and have been in continuous operation since that time, doing a general line of pottery machining, contract work, and general repairing of all kinds.

Te firm was incorporated in 1916 as the Cain Machine Company. The officers are: J. W. Cain, president; J. C. Cain, vice president; T. F. Cain, manager and treasurer, and E. L. Cain, secretary.

The little jobs, of which there are many from the immediate vicinity, get just as careful attention as the larger projects, principally from the pottery and chemical trade, at the Cain plant.

Signs of the Times—Have Them Made to Order at Trainer's

"—— And let the rest of the world go by."

You've heard the song. It sounds good, but it's all wrong. Don't do it! If you're in business, if you've something to sell, you can't afford to let the rest of the world go by!

Stop them, bring them in, sell them something they need and you'll both profit. You can't sandbag them, of course, but you don't have to. Just a bit of a paint brush, in the fingers of Les Trainer, can turn the trick. Advertising . . . there's the pull that brings the public to your values.

But it must be natural . . . natural as a baby's smile and just as attractive and unaffected.

And that requires true artistry and command. With both of these, as well as considerable experience in his business, Trainer, who less than a year year ago embarked "on his own," has established a rapidly growing business.

He is helping to make the "signs of the times," big ones, small ones, all kinds, for outside and inside, highly decorative placards, or just plain lettering, as your needs prescribe.

You'll find him at his shop, in Green Lane, a block from the Diamond, or at his phone, 1466-M, for estimates.

Adam and Craig Can Help You in Buying Your New Homesite

The task of buying a home, although it's really not a task . . . more like a mission of joy, is nevertheless a proposition conducive of more or less worry, especially when the prospective home owner is embarking on his first venture in real estate.

Consequently, when the services and advice of a reputable dealer in real estate are always available, the first step of the man who expects to buy should be to confer with the dealer and get started on the right foot.

Adam and Craig, Sixth street, have operated a real estate and insurance firm here for a number of years and a resume of their accomplishments is first-class proof of their business ability.

Adam and Craig are agents for the Gaston Place allotment, on the California Hollow road, where a number of excellent home sites are available away from the noise, clamor and dirt of the city proper, and yet within reach of practically all modern facilities.

In addition they ordinarily have a number of other good opportunities in real estate and homes. They may be able to help you. Give them a ring—Main 263.

Pastry Dessert, From Newell System Bake Shop, "Makes" Meal

Just as no automobile would be complete without all four wheels, or a cloud without its silver lining, or a flapper without her lipstick, no well regulated, hunger satisfying, taste tempting meal or luncheon can be complete without its dessert, and why not make it pastry?

How about some delicious fruit tarts, or lady fingers and ice cream, a cream puff, or macaroons, or perhaps cholocate eclaires of a quality such as has made the Newell System bakery a mecca for those busy housewives who would rather buy than cook it themselves and at the same time save money?

The Newell System Bakery, in the Diamond, widely known for its bread, also . . . the "bread that makes the butterfly," can supply you in all these needs, as well as other delectable dinner and luncheon accessories such as gingerbread, pie, cake, cookies, Parkerhouse rolls, coffee cake and other tidbits.

And don't forget, this is Hot Cross Bun week. You can get them at the Newell System Bakery.

Local Firm Can Save You a Dollar a Ton On Sand and Gravel

Distance lends enchantment, as the adage goes, but, as a general rule, it costs more and doesn't make the object in question any better after all, whether it's shoelaces and hairpins or sand and gravel.

And speaking of the latter, it's an actual fact that folks here, buying from the East Liverpool Sand Co., can save a whole dollar on the ton. Prices being equal (and the local concern's are as reasonable as any of them) it'll cost you about 70 cents a ton freight and 30 cents more for handling, to buy out of town.

Because of this saving, plus good service and quality materials, the local firm is supplying the new Laughlin plant and will handle the E. M. Knowles work.

In addition they're supplying a Pennsylvania highway project, the West Virginia end of the road through Chester to Pittsburgh, the California Hollow road, as well as jobs in the Youngstown district and elsewhere.

Their product, brought from the bottom of the Ohio, by a modern bucket ladder dredge, is thoroughly washed and screened. It is sent out from a 24-car siding at the plant in West Second street, and local delivery is made through a four-truck fleet. They'll send you sand, gravel and cement all in one load—a big advantage.

Swiss Watch Repair Exclusive Feature Of Prescott's Shop

Factory experience, obtainable nowhere but at the factory, the actual source, plus years of training in the general jewelry repairing, an exclusive service on Swiss watches, together with native ability and business character, are, summed up briefly, the principal reasons for the remarkable growth of the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop, 704 St. Clair avenue, established less than a year ago.

Prescott brings to the city, following his factory work, a skill in watch repairing obtained at the Elgin and Illinois plants and with Ralph Lazarus, New York importer of Swiss watches. As a result, it is not necessary now, in reference to the latter, to send work out of town for competent repair attention.

Prescott is a diamond setter, remodels old type jewelry to conform with the latest styles, designs jewelry to order and repairs Westminster chime clocks, having taken a special course in this.

He is able to buy direct from the factory, reducing costs to an amazing extent, a small overhead also contributing to a savings.

Your work, at Prescott's is certain of careful, skillful attention.

Cain Machine Co., in Business Here for More Than 26 Years

An unmatchable personnel of directing officers, of character and integrity, as well as a reputation built of perfection in their products and their work over a period of 26 years or more, combine to establish the Cain Machine Company, machinists and engineers, as one of the leading industrial organizations of its kind in eastern Ohio.

Just as the proof of the pudding is in the eating, the proof of their efficiency, especially in the pottery machine line, is seen in the fact that their work is shipped to practically all parts of the United States and points in Canada, as well.

The Cain Brothers Company was organized in 1901 and have been in continuous operation since that time, doing a general line of pottery machining, contract work, and general repairing of all kinds.

Te firm was incorporated in 1916 as the Cain Machine Company. The officers are: J. W. Cain, president; J. C. Cain, vice president; T. F. Cain, manager and treasurer, and E. L. Cain, secretary.

The little jobs, of which there are many from the immediate vicinity, get just as careful attention as the larger projects, principally from the pottery and chemical trade, at the Cain plant.

BULLET WOUND FATAL TO CHILD

Wellsburg Boy Killed While Playing With Automatic Pistol.

James Charles Cheeks, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cheeks, of Washington Pike, one mile east of Wellsburg, died yesterday afternoon in a Wheeling hospital as a result of a bullet wound at the base of the brain sustained while playing with a revolver in his home.

His mother and father had called the child to breakfast and he had appeared with an alarm clock in his hand. He was ordered back to the bed room with the clock, being told to dress and come to the table. Only a few moments after the boy had retired to the sleeping room which he shared with his parents a shot was heard and Mr. and Mrs. Cheeks rushed into the room to find the child lying on the floor, unconscious.

The automatic pistol, kept beneath Mr. Cheek's pillow as a protection against marauders, was clutched in the boy's hand. He had evidently taken it from its hiding place and then fired it into his mouth while playing with it. The parents rushed their child to the hospital in the hope that an operation might be performed in time to save his life.

ROAD BUILDING MAY BE DEFERRED

Road building in West Virginia during the next two years hangs in the balance at Charleston, and there is some question as to whether or not the conferees from the house and senate named to effect a compromise on the bills providing for reissuance of redeemed road bonds, according to a statement made last night by State Senator Wright Hugus of the first senatorial district at his home in Wheeling.

"Unless a compromise is reached there will be no road building in the state for the next two years," said the senator.

ESCAPED SHORT TERMERS CAUGHT

Fugitives from the custody of Warden S. P. Smith, of the state prison are being picked up by the police officers about the state, the warden said last night. Three or four escaped men are now in custody at points down-state, and will be returned to the prison during the ensuing week, the warden said.

Thurl Wiseman and Louis Sylvestor, the latest to walk away from the state prison mine, are still at liberty.

The warden said that the short term men wander about for a time, but eventually drift to their homes, probably believing that the local officials would not be advised that they had escaped.

"The short termers often get away from the guards at the road camps and at the farm," said the warden. "They are sent out on trust, and sometimes the temptation to escape becomes too great. We get a greater portion of them back, but it costs us $50 reward for each, in addition to the transportation expense. The homing instinct leads to the capture of nearly every one of the men brought back in to serve out their terms," the warden added.

"The short termers often get away from the guards at the road camps and at the farm," said the warden. "They are sent out on trust, and sometimes the temptation to escape becomes too great. We get a greater portion of them back, but it costs us $50 reward for each, in addition to the transportation expense. The homing instinct leads to the capture of nearly every one of the men brought back in to serve out their terms," the warden added.

POWERS SEND IDENTIC PROTESTS ON NANKING INCIDENTS

NATIONALISTS' ARMY PREPARES TO TURN GUNS UPON PUKOW

Retreat of Cantonese to South Bank of Yangtse Continues.

MOBS AT SOOCHOW

Chang Tso Lin Asks U. S. for Financial Assistance.

LONDON, April 11. — The identic notes of protest by the powers on the Nanking incidents have been delivered to the Chinese Nationalists, it was announced today. The foreign office will release the British note late this afternoon for publication in morning papers of Tuesday.

Copyright, 1927, International News Service.

PEKING, April 11.— "This is not the time for the powers to send protests. It would be wiser if the powers would back me indirectly and financially making it possible for me to fight the communist elements."

Chang Tso Lin, northern war lord, made this statement today in an exclusive interview granted the International News Service.

Chang Tso Lin desires the United States to advance the North China government a credit of $100,000,000.

Chang Tso Lin, in the course of the interview, expressed great surprise that an American evacuation in North China should have been ordered.

Plan To Bombard Rail Center.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—The Chinese Nationalists have brought up guns from the Nanking fortifications and trained them upon Pukow, indicating that they intend to withdraw from that important railroad center and then bombard it when the northern troops occupy it.

The retreat of the Cantonese troops from the north to the south bank of the Yangtse river continued today.

Gen. Sun Chuan Fang, Northern commander, is driving hard against the Southerners' lines between Shiherwei (30 miles northeast of Nanking) and Tungcho. He has forced a crossing of the Yangtse and is threatening Tanyang.

Another section of Marshal Chang Tso Lin's Northern army, under Gen. Chang Tsung Chang, is pressing hard in the direction of Pukow.

Deserters Return.

Many Nationalist soldiers, who had previously deserted from Gen Sun's army to the Southern army, are now reported to be returning to the flag of their original allegiance. This has materially weakened the Cantonese defenses at numerous points necessitating the evacuation of a number of places in North Kiangsu province.

The Japanese remaining at Soochow are planning to evacuate at once owing to increasing turbulence on the part of the Chinese laborers.

Mobs at Soochow made a series of hostile demonstrations against the Japanese compound and surrounded the consulate, holding prisoner a number of Japanese families that had taken refuge there.

May Move Capital to Nanking.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Chinese nationalists are preparing to remove their capital from Hankow and establish it at Nanking, according to a dispatch to the navy department today from Admiral C. S. Williams, commanding the Asiatic fleet.

Reverses for the Cantonese in their drive northward were confirmed by Admiral Williams' dispatch.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—Military difficulties of the Nationalists attracted greater attention here today than the delivery of the protest of the powers on the Nanking incidents.

Nanking dispatches tonight declare that the Nationalists are in disorderly retreat, fleeing along the Tsinan Pukow railroad in the direction of Pukow.

Gov. Donahey Hits Slot Machine Men In Senate Message

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—Governor Vic Donahey this afternoon appealed to the Ohio legislature to "legislate for the protection of the children of the state, instead of acting for the protection of the slot-machine gamblers that are waxing fat on the nickels and dimes of our children."

Denying the charge that the De Armond anti-slot machine bill, defeated in the senate here last week, was "written by the attorney for a slot machine manufacturer and distributor and introduced in the interest of the manufacturer and distributor," the governor, in a message to the Ohio senate, this afternoon said:

"I again appeal to you to enact a really effective law against slot machines of a gambling nature. If the De Armond bill requires an amendment in order to prohibit the one type of machine Senator J. Eugene Roberts, of Mahoning county, and Correspondent Foster R. A. Forster a member of the Ohio legislature correspondents' association' say it would legalize, I hope you will so amend it."

them out of China. Then we shall leave China to the Chinese, as we keep America for Americans. If our British brothers feel that they have a Chinese war, that is their affair. We shall neither share it nor finance it.

THE Rev. Dr. Straton, forceful fundamentalist is suing the head of the American association for the advancement of atheism. Of all folly, atheism is the greatest. If a passenger on shipboard answers "nobody to the question "who runs this ship?" you charitably conclude that he is feeble minded. And if there were truth in atheism which is inconceivable, it would be a hideous truth, depriving humanity of its greatest comfort.

The earth is a cannonball express, going around the sun on a 558,000,000-mile journey every year, at a speed exceeding 63,000 miles an hour, warmed by a star nearly 100,000,000 miles ... surrounded by an ocean of ether, at absolute zero.

Whoever thinks such ... scheme as that has no engineer, should be pitied, not sued.

WHILE since you were told "our oil wealth will soon be exhausted." That helped oil stocks. Now the question is "what on earth shall we do with all the oil, new oil fields and oil wells?" That is not so good for oil stocks.

Standard Oil of California has drastically cut the price it pays for crude oil, cut averaging 50 cents a barrel. Ships and locomotives are burning oil, and its use for heating purposes spreads daily. There are 1,000,000 oil burners in the country now, and another million will soon be in using, saving trouble for the hand that shakes the furnaces, throws in the coal and rakes out the ashes. For heating, oil compared with coal, is like water from a faucet compared with water from an outside well.

But don't sell your oil stocks if they are sound and well established dividend payers. The flowing wells will not flow always, and the wise companies will conserve their oil; will later, sell for $8 a barrel what they sell now for 90 cents. Then there will be the usual too late, wailing over our national improvidence.

RUBBER DEALER WEDS MARY HAY

Richard Barthelmess' Divorced Wife on Second Honeymoon.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Broadway friends of Mary Hay, the dancer and divorced wife of Richard Barthelmess, screen star, were surprised to learn today that she has been married again. She slipped away to Greenwich, Conn., Saturday night and was married by a justice of the peace to Vivian Beath, 21-year-old British rubber dealer of Singapore, India.

Now she plans to quit the stage and live in far-off Singapore. Before she leaves the country she hopes to persuade Barthelmess to give up their four-year-old child, Mary Hay Barthelmess, whose custody was awarded six months a year to each of the parents. A divorce was granted to Barthelmess and his wife in Paris on January 15, last.

Mr. and Mrs. Bath planned to start for the west today or tomorrow and will sail for Singapore on April 28. Before she departs for India the bride will see her former husband about the child.

Richard Barthelmess and his wife broke off relations last November after quarrelling on the sidewalk in front of a night club in New York. Soon divorce papers were filed in Paris.

Miss Hay appeared in one motion picture, and has played in vaudeville as the dancing partner of Clifton Webb. She also appeared in several musical comedy hits. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank M. Caldwell of New York and Washington.

White Slave Traffic In Hungarian Cities Brings Many Arrests

MISKOLCZ, Hungary. — Several score of men, some of them government officials, have been arrested here on charges of operating a white slave traffic center. The chief of the government employment bureau, Dr. Ferencz Szikszay, who was a prominent leader of the social life of the city, was imprisoned as the chief of the gang.

The arrests have made a considerable stir and resulted in further disclosures that hundreds of girls are sent out of Hungary every year by white slavers who appear to be well organized. Dr. Szikszay opened an employment office here under government protection and in this way got ahold of the girls, mostly from the country, whom he desired. The investigations are being continued and the government at Budapest has promised to clean up all traces of the traffic in the country at once.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our most heartfelt thanks to Rev. Fowler, choir, friends and neighbors for the kindness shown us in the illness and death of our dear father, John B. McKinnon. We also wish to thank the friends who sent the beautiful flowers.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 11.—Speculative buying of railroad and motor stocks resulted in further gains in active stocks in these groups in the first hour. Independent steel shares were inclined to join the upward procession, while coppers and oils, particularly the latter, declined fractionally under selling pressure.

First reports of the new week contained very favorable comparisons of first quarter business compared with the same period last year. Steel, automobile, manufacturing and building construction records were above expectations, stimulating the hope and belief that the accomplishments of the whole year 1927 might measure up favorably with last year. Call money was unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Stocks of the Southwestern-merger group sold in good volume around the best prices of the current movement, on reports that L. F. Loree and his associates would shortly announce the basis for the amalgamation of important railroads in the southwest. New York Central, and Atchison led the dividend rails into slightly higher price territory.

U. S. Steel and General Motors repeated their spectacular advance to new high record prices. Steel's monthly report of unfilled tonnage showing a drop of only about 44,000 tons in March, was enthusiastically received in Wall Street, while General Motors received its principal stimulus from forecasts of favorable earnings in the first quarter of the year.

Chrysler was the leader on the low-priced motor group, advancing sharply to the year's high price of 46 in heavy trading. Studebaker and Willys Overland were firm, while Pierce Arrow scraped bottom on heavy offerings. Mercantile stocks were steady and sugar stocks firm.

Colorado Disputes Over Fees Aired In Sapiro Suit

FEDERAL BUILDING, Detroit, April 11.—A series of controversies which marked the activities of Aaron Sapiro in organizing Colorado potato growers, were revealed to the jury today in the million-dollar Ford-Sapiro libel suit.

The Colorado story closely paralleled Sapiro's career among Idaho growers, when he finally sued for fees through a clerk. The so-called co-operative king also sued the Colorado growers for fees in the same manner after having told them he would accept whatever compensation they offered for his services.

POWERS SEND IDENTIC PROTESTS ON NANKING INCIDENTS

NATIONALISTS' ARMY PREPARES TO TURN GUNS UPON PUKOW

Retreat of Cantonese to South Bank of Yangtse Continues.

MOBS AT SOOCHOW

Chang Tso Lin Asks U. S. for Financial Assistance.

LONDON, April 11. — The identic notes of protest by the powers on the Nanking incidents have been delivered to the Chinese Nationalists, it was announced today. The foreign office will release the British note late this afternoon for publication in morning papers of Tuesday.

Copyright, 1927. International News Service.

PEKING, April 11.—"This is not the time for the powers to send protests. It would be wiser if the powers would back me indirectly and financially making it possible for me to fight the communist elements."

Chang Tso Lin, northern war lord, made this statement today in an exclusive interview granted the International News Service.

Chang Tso Lin desires the United States to advance the North China government a credit of $100,000,000.

Chang Tso Lin, in the course of the interview, expressed great surprise that an American evacuation in North China should have been ordered.

Plan To Bombard Rail Center.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—The Chinese Nationalists have brought up guns from the Nanking fortifications and trained them upon Pukow, indicating that they intend to withdraw from that important railroad center and then bombard it when the northern troops occupy it.

The retreat of the Cantonese troops from the north to the south bank of the Yangtse river continued today.

Gen. Sun Chuan Fang, Northern commander, is driving hard against the Southerners' lines between Shiherwei (30 miles northeast of Nanking) and Tungcho. He has forced a crossing of the Yangtse and is threatening Tanyang.

Another section of Marshal Chang Tso Lin's Northern army, under Gen. Chang Tsung Chang, is pressing hard in the direction of Pukow.

Deserters Return.

Many Nationalist soldiers, who had previously deserted from Gen Sun's army to the Southern army, are now reported to be returning to the flag of their original allegiance. This has materially weakened the Cantonese defenses at numerous points necessitating the evacuation of a number of places in North Kiangsu province.

The Japanese remaining at Soochow are planning to evacuate at once owing to increasing turbulence on the part of the Chinese laborers.

Mobs at Soochow made a series of hostile demonstrations against the Japanese compound and surrounded the consulate, holding prisoner a number of Japanese families that had taken refuge there.

May Move Capital to Nanking.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Chinese nationalists are preparing to remove their capital from Hankow and establish it at Nanking according to a dispatch to the navy department today from Admiral C. S. Williams, commanding the Asiatic fleet.

Reverses for the Cantonese in their drive northward were confirmed by Admiral Williams' dispatch.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—Military difficulties of the Nationalists attracted greater attention here today than the delivery of the protest of the powers on the Nanking incidents.

Nanking dispatches tonight declare that the Nationalists are in disorderly retreat, fleeing along the Tsinan Pukow railroad in the direction of Pukow.

Gov. Donahey Hits Slot Machine Men In Senate Message

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—Governor Vic Donahey this afternoon appealed to the Ohio legislature to "legislate for the protection of the children of the state, instead of acting for the protection of the slot-machine gamblers that are waxing fat on the nickels and dimes of our children."

Denying the charge that the De Armond anti-slot machine bill, defeated in the senate here last week, was "written by the attorney for a slot machine manufacturer and distributor and introduced in the interest of the manufacturer and distributor," the governor, in a message to the Ohio senate, this afternoon said:

"I again appeal to you to enact a really effective law against slot machines of a gambling nature. If the De Armond bill requires an amendment in order to prohibit the one type of machine Senator J. Eugene Roberts, of Mahoning county, and Correspondent Foster R. A. Forster a member of the Ohio legislature correspondents' association' say it would legalize, I hope you will so amend it."

them out of China. Then we shall leave China to the Chinese, as we keep America for Americans. If our British brothers feel that they have a Chinese war, that is their affair. We shall neither share it nor finance it.

THE Rev. Dr. Straton, forceful fundamentalist is suing the head of the American association for the advancement of atheism. Of all folly, atheism is the greatest. If a passenger on shipboard answers "nobody to the question "who runs this ship?" you charitably conclude that he is feeble minded. And if there were truth in atheism which is inconceivable, it would be a hideous truth, depriving humanity of its greatest comfort.

The earth is a cannonball express, going around the sun on a 558,000,000-mile journey every year, at a speed exceeding 63,000 miles an hour, warmed by a star nearly 100,000,000 miles away surrounded by an ocean of ether, at absolute zero.

Whoever thinks such a scheme as that has no engineer, should be pitied, not sued.

WHILE since you were told "our oil wealth will soon be exhausted." That helped oil stocks. Now the question is "what on earth shall we do with all the oil, new oil fields and oil wells?" That is not so good for oil stocks.

Standard Oil of California has drastically cut the price it pays for crude oil, cut averaging 50 cents a barrel. Ships and locomotives are burning oil, and its use for heating purposes spreads daily. There are 1,000,000 oil burners in the country now, and another million will soon be in using, saving trouble for the hand that shakes the furnaces, throws in the coal and rakes out the ashes. For heating, oil compared with coal, is like water from a faucet compared with water from an outside well.

But don't sell your oil stocks if they are sound and well established dividend payers. The flowing wells will not flow always, and the wise companies will conserve their oil; will later, sell for $8 a barrel what they sell now for 90 cents. Then there will be the usual too late, wailing over our national improvidence.

RUBBER DEALER WEDS MARY HAY

Richard Barthelmess' Divorced Wife on Second Honeymoon.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Broadway friends of Mary Hay, the dancer and divorced wife of Richard Barthelmess, screen star, were surprised to learn today that she has been married again. She slipped away to Greenwich, Conn., Saturday night and was married by a justice of the peace to Vivian Foth, 21-year-old British rubber dealer of Singapore, India.

Now she plans to quit the stage and live in far-off Singapore. Before she leaves the country she hopes to persuade Barthelmess to give up their four-year-old child, Mary Hay Barthelmess, whose custody was awarded six months a year to each of the parents. A divorce was granted to Barthelmess and his wife in Paris on January 15, last.

Mr. and Mrs. Bath planned to start for the west today or tomorrow and will sail for Singapore on April 28. Before she departs for India the bride will see her former husband about the child.

Richard Barthelmess and his wife broke off relations last November after quarrelling on the sidewalk in front of a night club in New York. Soon divorce papers were filed in Paris.

Miss Hay appeared in one motion picture, and has played in vaudeville as the dancing partner of Clifton Webb. She also appeared in several musical comedy hits. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank M. Caldwell of New York and Washington.

White Slave Traffic In Hungarian Cities Brings Many Arrests

MISKOLCZ, Hungary. — Several score of men, some of them government officials, have been arrested here on charges of operating a white slave traffic center. The chief of the government employment bureau, Dr. Ferencz Szikszay, who was a prominent leader of the social life of the city, was imprisoned as the chief of the gang.

The arrests have made a considerable stir and resulted in further disclosures that hundreds of girls are sent out of Hungary every year by white slavers who appear to be well organized. Dr. Szikszay opened an employment office here under government protection and in this way got ahold of the girls, mostly from the country, whom he desired. The investigations are being continued and the government at Budapest has promised to clean up all traces of the traffic in the country at once.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our most heartfelt thanks to Rev. Fowler, choir, friends and neighbors for the kindness shown us in the illness and death of our dear father, John B. McKinnon. We also wish to thank the friends who sent the beautiful flowers.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 11.—Speculative buying of railroad and motor stocks resulted in further gains in active stocks in these groups in the first hour. Independent steel shares were inclined to join the upward procession, while coppers and oils, particularly the latter, declined fractionally under selling pressure.

First reports of the new week contained very favorable comparisons of first quarter business compared with the same period last year. Steel, automobile, manufacturing and building construction records were above expectations, stimulating the hope and belief that the accomplishments of the whole year 1927 might measure up favorably with last year. Call money was unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Stocks of the Southwestern-merger group sold in good volume around the best prices of the current movement, on reports that L. F. Loree and his associates would shortly announce the basis for the amalgamation of important railroads in the southwest. New York Central, and Atchison led the dividend rails into slightly higher price territory.

U. S. Steel and General Motors repeated their spectacular advance to new high record prices. Steel's monthly report of unfilled tonnage showing a drop of only about 44,000 tons in March, was enthusiastically received in Wall Street, while General Motors received its principal stimulus from forecasts of favorable earnings in the first quarter of the year.

Chrysler was the leader of the low-priced motor group, advancing sharply to the year's high price of 46 in heavy trading. Studebaker and Willys Overland were firm, while Pierce Arrow scraped bottom on heavy offerings. Mercantile stocks were steady and sugar stocks firm.

balance stresses the construction of the footwalks takes place simultaneously on both sides of the river, and on both the river and land side of each tower at once. Incidentally, it is pointed out, this work calls for great daring and skill on the part of the bridge builders, but that all goes with that kind of a job, which often presents more spectacular performances than are ever witnessed in a circus

Parallel wire cables of sufficient strength to carry the load that is planned for the new Hudson river bridge would have to be 37 inches in diameter each, and would contain approximately 27,000 individual quarter-inch wires. They would have a carrying strength of 330,000 tons each, as compared with 125,000 tons for the cables on the Delaware river bridge and 45,000 tons for those on the Brooklyn bridge. The Delaware bridge cables are 30 inches in diameter and contain 18,000 of the quarter-inch wires.

Financing the Hudson structure was no small problem. The states of New York and New Jersey first provided $300,000 for the initial surveys and studies, and then they appropriated $5,000,000 each to put the enterprise on a sound basis. This $10,000,000 is in the nature of a loan and is to be repaid to the states with interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

The first block of bonds of $20,000,000 out of an authorized issue of $60,000,000 was placed on the market last December and sold readily at a price such that makes the money cost only a fraction more than 4 per cent.

The bridge, economically, will first of all ease off the water blockade that has almost entirely prevented highway communications between New York city and northern New Jersey and southern New York state. Then, too, it is expected to stimulate such communications all the way from Delaware Water Gap to New England, and to enable tourists to avoid present city traffic jams and congestion on the ferries.

CATARRH VERY COMMON IN CENTRAL STATES

World's Tonic Banishes It Despite Climatic and Other Conditions That Promote the Disease.

It seems that no other country furnishes the percentage of Catarrhal cases per thousand population that is found in America. Statistics show that the central states have a very much higher percentage than the average. It is estimated by competent authorities that approximately three out of five persons in this section suffer from Catarrh in one form or another. It is probably that most of these cases have tried various so-called remedies with very little, if any, relief. There is, however, one sure, certain relief for the majority of catarrhal conditions, the systemic treatment—World's Tonic.

Usually Catarrh starts first in the head, nose or throat and the constant dropping of the discharge into the throat, where much of it finds its way into the stomach, sets up catarrhal inflammation and distress there and in the bowels. World's Tonic cleanses the sores and heals them, stops the poisonous discharge, helps to purify the blood and stimulates the various organs to their natural functions of elimination of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Let the World's Tonic druggist tell you all about it. Sold by Carnahan's also Brannon, Wellsville, and all other good druggists. (240.)

BELLE BENNETT STORY SCREENED

'Fourth Commandment' Is Picture at American.

As the outcome of one of the strangest stories of mother love ever told little Wendell Phillips Franklin received this first chance before the camera and made good.

The story is Belle Bennett's. Its startling climax came to light during the filming of Emory Johnson's production, "The Fourth Commandment," the Universal production at the American theatre today.

Seventeen years ago Billie was born. His mother, Belle Bennett, and her husband, were struggling players, young and untried. Fearing that public knowledge that Belle Bennett was married and a mother would spoil her chances of a great career, the secret was kept.

Years passed and Belle Bennett attained fame though a martyr to the cause of career and public approval.

Then came the time, a year ago, when Billie became ill. His mother rushed to his bedside and claimed him. Billie lived to know that his mother had become a great actress and to tell of the little chubby-faced boy who had become attached to him.

This is the month when you are specially peeved when you find that your umbrella is at the other end of the line.—Bellefontaine Examiner.

balance stresses the construction of the footwalks takes place simultaneously on both sides of the river, and on both the river and land side of each tower at once. Incidentally, it is pointed out, this work calls for great daring and skill on the part of the bridge builders, but that all goes with that kind of a job, which often presents more spectacular performances than are ever witnessed in a circus

Parallel wire cables of sufficient strength to carry the load that is planned for the new Hudson river bridge would have to be 37 inches in diameter each, and would contain approximately 27,000 individual quarter-inch wires. They would have a carrying strength of 330,000 tons each, as compared with 125,000 tons for the cables on the Delaware river bridge and 45,000 tons for those on the Brooklyn bridge. The Delaware bridge cables are 30 inches in diameter and contain 18,000 of the quarter-inch wires.

IRENE RICH IN FILM HIT

"Don't Tell Wife" Screen Offering at Strand.

Irene Rich, in her new Warner Brothers' picture, "Don't Tell the Wife," which comes to the Strand theatre today, is cast as a sophisticated young Parisian matron, who, in a series of whimsically swift and amusing happenings finds her beloved and gallivanting husband has been led in a direction that is nearly astray through succumbing to the almost international preference for blondes.

The blonde in the case is Lilyan Tashman, the same Lilyan who was the lady who lived across the street in Lubitsch's "So This Is Paris." In "Don't Tell the Wife," she plays an unmarried flirt, whose preference seems to be for men who are already married.

In this case her bright and roving eyes light upon Huntly Gordon. But it is not her eyes that set him aflame. It is when he sees her blonde hair that he realizes there's a dance in the old boy yet. So they go and dance.

William Demarest, as a young man about Paris, which is decidely more than a young man about town in any other town, begins to interest the wife (Irene Rich). They hit it off so well together that they decide upon a Paris divorce, for even Parisians get divorced in Paris.

It is at this juncture that the short, fat and merry Otos Harlan steps into the picture in the role of a Parisian Magistrate. He decides to fix things for everybody. And he does. The result is that he takes a divorce and then the two couples slip off on their honeymoons before he can stop them.

It is here, in the delicate handling of an extremely delicate situation that the Gallic finesse of the Austrian director, Paul Stein, saves the situation. He has turned out a comedy of rothy fun.

An American has just started an electric street car line and power plant in Osijek, Slavonia.

A coal company will start a plant o supply electric light and power to he city of Valdivia, Chile.

FARMERS' BACK HOUSE MEASURE

Proposal for Stringent Dog Law Pending in Legislature.

Few bills pending before the present legislature have been followed with as much interest by farmers as the present proposal for a more stringent dog law according to a message received by the Columbiana county farm bureau from L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio farm bureau federation. Several proposals for such legislation have been combined into the Hodson bill No. 164 which has the support of a large group of farm organizations, humane societies and health authorities.

The bill is of particular interest to sheep men, according to Palmer, who is also president of the Ohio Wool Growers' Cooperative association, as the sheep population of the state has decreased from 3,090,000 in 1910 to 2,010 0000 in 1925, due in large part, it is alleged, to the ravages of dogs. It is also of interest to both city and rural residents as a health measure to prevent the spread of disease, particularly rabies, Palmer says.

"Ohio has more purebred sheep flocks than any other state with fine wool," according to Palmer. "The largest decrease in sheep population has been in the hill counties where sheep are the most profitable live stock. Thirty Ohio counties failed to pay their sheep claims last year due to excessive losses."

The proposed law provides for a dog warden, appointed by county commissioners, to impound unlicensed dogs and investigate claims of dog damage. All license fees, under its provisions will be placed in a dog and kennel fund of the county treasury. Claims will be paid from this fund. After a reserve of $5 000 is attained and all claims paid, balances may be transferred to other funds.

MANY DAMAGE CASES PENDING

During the present term of common pleas court, the city of Salem will be called upon to defend 27 civil actions now pending against it, wherein not less than a total of $135,000 damages is being sought by these plaintiffs. In the majority of instances the plaintiffs seek $5,000 damages from the municipality, but several petitions now on file ask for $10,000 damages.

Last year a number of similar damage actions against the city of Salem were settled out of court by way of compromise. Never before in the history of the county has one municipality been called upon to defend so many civil actions for damages has as the Salem corporation. These damage actions have been in progress ever since the municipality went through a typhoid fever epidemic a number of years ago.

"Decision Day" Planned.

"Decision Day" will be observed Easter Sunday by the Lisbon Christian church for all denartments and bible school above the primary department. Wednesday evening a "Resurrection Story" in the nature of a pageant will be given.

PERSONAL TAX RETURNS FILED

Hundreds of personal tax returns are being filed daily with the county auditor's office, although but three weeks remain before tax listing day. Over 15,000 personal tax returns are to be filed, but less than half this number has been returned to the Lisbon office.

The return of the individual must be sworn to, and in the event this is not done when the return is received 50 per cent of the valuation listed upon the return will be added to the total.

Radios must be included in the list of musical instruments. The returns will also be checked against the automobile records of the county, and where discrepancies are located, the tax returns will be corrected to correspond with the official records of bills of sale, sworn statement of ownership, and applications for license plates.

TEMPLARS WILL ATTEND CHURCH

Salem Commandery, Knights Templar, will attend the morning service at the Lisbon Presbyterian church next Sunday morning in a body. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Peter W. Macaulay, who is also a member of this body.

Rev. Percy Gordon, D. D., officiated at the morning service in church yesterday, when the congregation made the request that the relations existing between the Rev. Mr. Macaulay and the congregation be dissolved by Mahoning presbytery.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Clifford T. Morris of Wellsville and Miss Elda Payne, also of Wellsville. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. Charles N. Church.

Guy Lucci and Alice Cooney, both of East Liverpool, were granted a marriage license Saturday afternoon and were married at Lisbon by Justice M K. Zimerman.

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 17 years, it seemer cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. FARMERS' BACK HOUSE MEASURE

Proposal for Stringent Dog Law Pending in Legislature.

Few bills pending before the present legislature have been followed with as much interest by farmers as the present proposal for a more stringent dog law according to a message received by the Columbiana county farm bureau from L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio farm bureau federation. Several proposals for such legislation have been combined into the Hodson bill No. 164 which has the support of a large group of farm organizations, humane societies and health authorities.

The bill is of particular interest to sheep men, according to Palmer, who is also president of the Ohio Wool Growers' Cooperative association, as the sheep population of the state has decreased from 3,090,000 in 1910 to 2,010 0000 in 1925, due in large part, it is alleged, to the ravages of dogs. It is also of interest to both city and rural residents as a health measure to prevent the spread of disease, particularly rabies, Palmer says.

"Ohio has more purebred sheep flocks than any other state with fine wool," according to Palmer. "The largest decrease in sheep population has been in the hill counties where sheep are the most profitable live stock. Thirty Ohio counties failed to pay their sheep claims last year due to excessive losses."

The proposed law provides for a dog warden, appointed by county commissioners, to impound unlicensed dogs and investigate claims of dog damage. All license fees, under its provisions will be placed in a dog and kennel fund of the county treasury. Claims will be paid from this fund. After a reserve of $5 000 is attained and all claims paid, balances may be transferred to other funds.

MANY DAMAGE CASES PENDING

During the present term of common pleas court, the city of Salem will be called upon to defend 27 civil actions now pending against it, wherein not less than a total of $135,000 damages is being sought by these plaintiffs. In the majority of instances the plaintiffs seek $5,000 damages from the municipality, but several petitions now on file ask for $10,000 damages.

Last year a number of similar damage actions against the city of Salem were settled out of court by way of compromise. Never before in the history of the county has one municipality been called upon to defend so many civil actions for damages has has the Salem corporation. These damage actions have been in progress ever since the municipality went through a typhoid fever epidemic a number of years ago.

"Decision Day" Planned.

"Decision Day" will be observed Easter Sunday by the Lisbon Christian church for all departments and Bible school above the primary department. Wednesday evening a "Resurrection Story" in the nature of a pageant will be given.

PERSONAL TAX RETURNS FILED

Hundreds of personal tax returns are being filed daily with the county auditor's office, although but three weeks remain before tax listing day. Over 15,000 personal tax returns are to be filed, but less than half this number has been returned to the Lisbon office.

The return of the individual must be sworn to, and in the event this is not done when the return is received 50 per cent of the valuation listed upon the return will be added to the total.

Radios must be included in the list of musical instruments. The returns will also be checked against the automobile records of the county, and where discrepancies are located, the tax returns will be corrected to correspond with the official records of bills of sale, sworn statement of ownership, and applications for license plates.

TEMPLARS WILL ATTEND CHURCH

Salem Commandery, Knights Templar, will attend the morning service at the Lisbon Presbyterian church next Sunday morning in a body. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Peter W. Macaulay, who is also a member of this body.

Rev. Percy Gordon, D. D., officiated at the morning service in church yesterday, when the congregation made the request that the relations existing between the Rev. Mr. Macaulay and the congregation be dissolved by Mahoning presbytery.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Clifford T. Morris of Wellsville and Miss Elda Payne, also of Wellsville. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. Charles N. Church.

Guy Lucci and Alice Coonev, both of East Liverpool, were granted a marriage license Saturday afternoon and were married at Lisbon by Justice M K. Zimerman.

These licenses were the only ones issued by Probate Judge Lodge Riddle during last week.

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

16 PILOTS, EIGHT NEW ONES, FACE WIRE FOR 1927 FLAG RACE

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Professional pessimists, who like to think that the siege of Troy was a "carry" in order to make the thing look good, will be trampled under foot in the rush toward the turnstiles tomorrow by a quarter million souls, faithful always to their annual tryst with the game that is as much a part of America as Bartholdi's liberty and the corner cigar store. Major league baseball, buffeted and abused through a winter of discontent, is to have its official opening with 24 hours and, regardless of whether its feet be clay or white lead, America is willing to line its pockets with gold in order to renew a friendship that will endure through the ages.

Here in New York, Ty Cobb, a central figure in a mid-winter scandal that came to nothing, will be shown in the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics for the first time since he entered the major leagues 22 years ago. With him will be Eddie Collins, returning to the scene of his early fame; Zach Wheat, almost a hallowed figure now; Joe Boley and Dudley Branom, a pair of $50,000 minor leaguers and probably the most interesting ball club since the days of the old Orioles.

The co-attraction will be Babe Ruth, most famous of all players, and the New York Yankees, the playing through champions, and the thing is a push-in from a box office standpoint. Only the world series itself has witnessed a bigger advance sale than the local opening.

The first reservation for the Washington premiere arrived the day after Tris Speaker was purchased by the Senators and today you couldn't keep the boys away with a shot gun. So much for one of the 1926-27 scandals that had Speaker on the petard with Cobb.

The other scandal named a score or more of players but back-fired so badly that the identity of many of the accused has been forgotten, even in the few short months intervening.

For baseball, always a favorite of the fates, also enjoyed a million dollars worth of advertising that was far less adverse and far more wholesome. Babe Ruth, for instance, was signed with a flare and a flourish to a $70,000 a-year contract. Rogers Hornsby, manager of a world's champion, was traded to New York and only two days ago did he condescend to accept $116,700 for his stock in the Cardinals with resultant publicity.

Eight new managers took charge of teams in both leagues, Bill Carrigan, famous as Fenway Park itself, coming back to Boston and the town where he won world's championships. Other new ones are Bob O'Farrell with the Cardinals; Dan Howley with the Browns; Donie Bush with Pittsburgh; Ray Schalk with the White Sox; George Moriarty with the Tigers; Stuffy McInnes with the Phillies and Jack McCallister with the Indians. It is a matter of record that a new manager never kept an addict away from an opening game.

In fact, granted favorable weather, it would surprise no one if the teams played to capacity, or thereabout, in each of the eight favored cities. The Phillies generally are picked to go nowhere very rapidly; yet with Hornsby and Eddie Roush, new Giants, and John McGraw celebrating his silver jubilee as manager, as the headliners and Philadelphia's established loyalty to the National league club, no customer will suffer from loneliness at the Baker stadium.

The New York and Washington openings cannot miss; neither can Cleveland's inaugural with the White Sox, nor the champion Cardinals invasion of Chicago against a rising young ball club that may live to knock them all off. Boston, of course, will support its Braves against the Dodgers as only Boston can and St. Louis, convinced by the Cards that there is a Santa Claus, will be out there to tell the Browns and Tigers that anything is possible now.

The Pirates and Reds, pre-season favorites, will be another "natural" for the Cincinati opening; in fact, Redland field probably would have to have rubber walls to accommodate every addict who has the price and the inclination to part with it

It is customary to exude optimism at this stage of the proceedings and the writer has duly done so. However, the effort involved was negligible. There isn't a doubt at the moment that more interest is being manifested in baseball than at any time within memory.

East Liverpool Cage Teams Dominate Washington Tourney

Centrals, Buckeyes Win Championships

Folks in western Pennsylvania have heard rumors of East Liverpool's prowess in the world of basketball. Saturday the rumors were verified when East Liverpool teams won two-thirds of the three-way Tri-State tournament at Washington Y. M. C. A., the Centrals copping the Junior division championship and the Buckeyes pulling down laurels in the intermediate class. A quint composed of Pitt players won the senior division play.

The Centrals opened up with a 12 to 6 victory over the Steubenville "Y," field goals by Snape and Pierson and fouls by Snape and McNutt accounting for the points.

In the second game, Ullon and Bailey of Waynesburg defeated the Washington "Y" Midgets and then won from the East Liverpool Centrals. Central was outscored in the first period, 15 to 2. In the third quarter the battle started and when the final whistle blew, it was found that Central had lost, 29-27. However just as Coach "Chuck" McConville was pulling the last reluctant member of his squad from the water of the swimming pool after the game, it was discovered that Waynesburg had played a man who was over age and they were forced, consequently, to forfeit their games to the Midgets and the Centrals.

The Centrals then took over the Midgets, 21 to 19, their 16 to 10 lead at the half turning the trick.

With the championship as their goal Central went out in the final and walked all over Canonsburg First Ward, 39 to 3, with Snape and McNutt leading the attack.

Three East Liverpool teams played in the intermediate division, the Buckeyes winning over the field, including the Bulger Drugs and the Roselawns.

The Buckeyes first defeated the Washington City Little Five, 25 to 13, then the Eurekas, 25 to 18; the Steubenville "Y" five, 33 to 14, and finally the Wellsburg "Y," 32 to 22.

Four members of the Centrals were selected on the Junior division all-tournament squads — McNutt being picked for center and Ashbaugh guard on the first team, and Snape, forward; Simpson, guard, on the second team.

First team.		Second team.
Pierson, Cen.	F.	Snape, Central
Siegal, Steu.	F.	Delbriso, Can.
McNutt, Cen.	C.	Louch, Midgets
Ashbaugh, Cen.	G.	Simpson, Cen.
Graft, Midgets	G.	Bucci, Can.

McNutt was named as the outstanding player, in addition to being the high point man with 16 field goals and two fouls, a total of 34 points. Central's team play, as a whole, was the outstanding feature of the Junior division. McNutt to Pierson to Snape with McNutt following in was the secret of their success. Short, snappy passing and accurate shooting by any of these three accounted for most of the scoring. The guarding of Simpson and Ashbaugh on the other hand also was a big feature. In fact, their willingness to work together at the sacrifice of personal glory won them all places on the all-tourney squads.

Three members of the Buckeyes won places on the intermediate division all-tourney squad, including Wildblood at forward, Bailey at center and Skidmore at guard. Lewis, of Wellsburg, at a forward, and Turley, also of Wellsburg, at a guard, were the other two members of the all-star combine.

Wildblood was unanimously picked as the outstanding player, although Davis, who was captain of the Wellsburg high school team last year, outscored him. It was Jimmy's willingness in team play and his ability to work into the passes that won him the honor. Bailey outjumped his opponents consistently and played a steady floor game. Skidmore's guarding during the tourney and more particularly in the last game when he covered Davis like a tent won him a place.

SHADE-KRUG BOUT CHICAGO FEATURE

CHICAGO, April 11.—Although the Dave Shade-Phil Krug ten-round bout is billed as the main event on Jim Mullin's all-star card at the Coliseum tomorrow night, the lightweight encounter between Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" and King Tut of Minneapolis, is attracting wide interest and threatens to outshine the windup event.

Petrolle is favored by local fans to win over Tut, who is making his first appearance in a local ring. Despite his successes on the Pacific coast and in the region of the Twin Cities, Petrolle followers expect the "Express" to knock the King colder than this ancient namesake.

All four principles in the feature events have been training faithfully and are said to be in top notch condition. On Shade's showing against the venerable but clever Krug, is said to depend his chance for a championship bout with Mickey Walker here this summer.

UHLE MAY START FOR CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, April 11.—Back on their own reservation, the Cleveland Indians today will engage in a final pre-season practice at Dunn Field. Big George Uhle, the American league's premier pitcher in 1926, who will probably start on the mound for Cleveland Tuesday in the opening game with Chicago, visited the home lot Sunday and whizzed a few across the plate, while his teammates were dropping their last exhibition game of the season to the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati.

The White Sox, led by Manager Ray Schalk, arrived in the city Sunday night. Ted Lyons, well known jinx of the Indians, will probably be Schalk's choice to start the hurling for Chicago Tuesday.

The craze for lawn tennis which has sprung up during the last few years in Berlin is evidenced by the elaborate preparations that are being made for the celebration of "Tilden Week" in May, when William T. Tilden, the great American player, and his trouble of racquet wielders are to engage in exhibition and tournament play in the German capital.

Elks Defeat Rauhs Here In Hot Clash

In a sizzling, red hot encounter that gave over 400 local basketball fans a double attraction—basketball and the sport that made the Marquis of Queensberry famous—the East Liverpool Elks defeated the Enoch Rauh club, runner-up to the champion Lafayette five in the Allegheny county league, at the high school gym Saturday night, 52 to 43.

Both clubs waged battles as brilliantly offensive as any seen on the local court this season, the combined scores reaching almost to the century mark.

And in the final period, so fiery became the contenders, with victory liable to be decided either way with a flurry of field goals, several of the rivals resorted to fisticuffs. On one occasion part of the crowd was out on the floor, but animosities subsided just as quickly as they flared up and the game was finished with an olive branch waving triumphantly in the beak of the dove of peace. The dove had a hard night but was still in the ring at the final bell.

The Rauhs had a fast, scoring team, but insisted on roughing it up on the scrimmages and blocking and holding too frequently, and finally, when Dard Minehart, pal of Tony Paulsey's, went down with a sock in the solar plexus, the boys insisted on pairing off and deciding the issue by way of the manly art.

However, exclusive of the interruptions in the final period, the game was the most flashy exhibition of the latter part of the season.

It saw the return of Ray Wilde to the lineup. Wilde was out of a uniform for several weeks as a result of an injured ankle, and he still favored the ankle in Saturday night's clash, but at that managed to work into the team play in his own inimitable way and he hobbled for a trio of field goals during the festivities.

In the absence of Captain Simon Anderson and Charles McConville, both being unable to take part in the game, Dick Larkins, high school lad, and Dave Shupe were assigned to the guard posts. Dick has broken into fast company in only the last couple of weeks, but is taking to it like a duck to water and put up a great game in the first half. In the second he was replaced by Minehart of Paulsey's Campbell five, and Minehart proved a real tower of strength in the defense end of the court when the milling was most torrid.

Shupe played his regular game and—that, it chances, is good enough for any outfit in this league.

Big Tony, at center, was "on," especially in the final half when he dropped in five field goals.

Nate Lippe was gall and wormwood to his former teammates. They saw him loop the leather eight times during the fray, four in the first half and as many in the second. With four fouls more, Lippe led the scorers with a total of 20 points. Paulsey was next with 14.

The visitors were strongest in the first half when every man on the squad, save Paris at center, scored at least a couple of field goals, Berman bucketing four. The Rauh's guard plays were working nicely, Marx and Alman coming up the court for five two-pointers. After that the Elks bore down on their check-up system and the stuff was off.

The Antlers led by a score of 13 to 11 at the end om the first quarter, but the Rauhs overcame the slim margin and took the front position at the half when the count stood 26 to 24.

The Elks have been a notoriously strong third-quarter team during the entire season and they insisted on being themselves Saturday night.

When Referee Buxton sent them into action at the start of the third period the Antlers dropped in three field goals scarcely before their playmates of the evening could draw a man-sized breath.

The visitors took time out and held a conference. They decided that this business must go no further. However, they forgot to tell the Elks, and so the scoreboard numerals changed rapidly as Powell's pasers hung up 19 points, almost two a minute.

The score was 43 to 33 when the intermission arrived, and in the concluding quarter, the Rauhs scored 10 points and the locals nine.

16 PILOTS, EIGHT NEW ONES, FACE WIRE FOR 1927 FLAG RACE

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Professional pessimists, who like to think that the siege of Troy was a "carry" in order to make the thing look good, will be trampled under foot in the rush toward the turnstiles tomorrow by a quarter million souls, faithful always to their annual tryst with the game that is as much a part of America as Bartholdi's liberty and the corner cigar store. Major league baseball, buffeted and abused through a winter of discontent, is to have its official opening with 24 hours and, regardless of whether its feet be clay or white lead, America is willing to line its pockets with gold in order to renew a friendship that will endure through the ages.

Here in New York, Ty Cobb, a central figure in a mid-winter scandal that came to nothing, will be shown in the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics for the first time since he entered the major leagues 22 years ago. With him will be Eddie Collins, returning to the scene of his early fame; Zach Wheat, almost a hallowed figure now; Joe Boley and Dudley Branom, a pair of $50,000 minor leaguers and probably the most interesting ball club since the days of the old Orioles.

The co-attraction will be Babe Ruth, most famous of all players, and the New York Yankees, the playing through champions, and the thing is a push-in from a box office standpoint. Only the world series itself has witnessed a bigger advance sale than the local opening.

The first reservation for the Washington premiere arrived the day after Tris Speaker was purchased by the Senators and today you couldn't keep the boys away with a shot gun. So much for one of the 1926-27 scandals that had Speaker on the petard with Cobb.

The other scandal named a score or more of players but back-fired so badly that the identity of many of the accused has been forgotten, even in the few short months intervening.

For baseball, always a favorite of the fates, also enjoyed a million dollars worth of advertising that was far less adverse and far more wholesome. Babe Ruth, for instance, was signed with a flare and a flourish to a $70,000 a-year contract. Rogers Hornsby, manager of a world's champion, was traded to New York and only two days ago did he condescend to accept $116,700 for his stock in the Cardinals with resultant publicity.

Eight new managers took charge of teams in both leagues, Bill Carrigan, famous as Fenway Park itself, coming back to Boston and the town where he won world's championships. Other new ones are Bob O'Farrell with the Cardinals; Dan Howley with the Browns; Donie Bush with Pittsburgh; Ray Schalk with the White Sox; George Moriarty with the Tigers; Stuffy McInnes with the Phillies and Jack McCallister with the Indians. It is a matter of record that a new manager never kept an addict away from an opening game.

In fact, granted favorable weather, it would surprise no one if the teams played to capacity, or thereabout, in each of the eight favored cities. The Phillies generally are picked to go nowhere very rapidly; yet with Hornsby and Eddie Roush, new Giants, and John McGraw celebrating his silver jubilee as manager, as the headliners and Philadelphia's established loyalty to the National league club, no customer will suffer from loneliness at the Baker stadium.

The New York and Washington openings cannot miss; neither can Cleveland's inaugural with the White Sox, nor the champion Cardinals invasion of Chicago against a rising young ball club that may live to knock them all off. Boston, of course, will support its Braves against the Dodgers as only Boston can and St. Louis, convinced by the Cards that there is a Santa Claus, will be out there to tell the Browns and Tigers that anything is possible now.

The Pirates and Reds, pre-season favorites, will be another "natural" for the Cincinati opening; in fact, Redland field probably would have to have rubber walls to accommodate every addict who has the price and the inclination to part with it

It is customary to exude optimism at this stage of the proceedings and the writer has duly done so. However, the effort involved was negligible. There isn't a doubt at the moment that more interest is being manifested in baseball than at any time within memory.

East Liverpool Cage Teams Dominate Washington Tourney

Centrals, Buckeyes Win Championships

Folks in western Pennsylvania have heard rumors of East Liverpool's prowess in the world of basketball. Saturday the rumors were verified when East Liverpool teams won two-thirds of the three-way Tri-State tournament at Washington Y. M. C. A., the Centrals copping the Junior division championship and the Buckeyes pulling down laurels in the intermediate class. A quint composed of Pitt players won the senior division play.

The Centrals opened up with a 12 to 6 victory over the Steubenville "Y," field goals by Snape and Pierson and fouls by Snape and McNutt accounting for the points.

In the second game, Ulon and Bailey of Waynesburg defeated the Washington "Y" Midgets and then won from the East Liverpool Centrals. Central was outscored in the first period, 15 to 2. In the third quarter the battle started and when the final whistle blew, it was found that Central had lost, 29-27. However just as Coach "Chuck" McConville was pulling the last reluctant member of his squad from the water of the swimming pool after the game, it was discovered that Waynesburg had played a man who was over age and they were forced, consequently, to forfeit their games to the Midgets and the Centrals.

The Centrals then took over the Midgets, 21 to 19, their 16 to 10 lead at the half turning the trick.

With the championship as their goal Central went out in the final and walked all over Canonsburg First Ward, 39 to 3, with Snape and McNutt leading the attack.

Three East Liverpool teams played in the intermediate division, the Buckeyes winning over the field, including the Bulger Drugs and the Roselawns.

The Buckeyes first defeated the Washington City Little Five, 25 to 13, then the Eurekas, 25 to 18; the Steubenville "Y" five, 33 to 14, and finally the Wellsburg "Y," 32 to 22.

Four members of the Centrals were selected on the Junior division all-tournament squads — McNutt being picked for center and Ashbaugh guard on the first team, and Snape, forward; Simpson, guard, on the second team.

First team.		Second team.
Pierson, Cen.	F.	Snape, Central
Siegal, Steu.	F.	Delbriso, Can.
McNutt, Cen.	C.	Louch, Midgets
Ashbaugh, Cen.	G.	Simpson, Cen
Graft, Midgets	G.	Bucci, Can.

McNutt was named as the outstanding player, in addition to being the high point man with 16 field goals and two fouls, a total of 34 points. Central's team play, as a whole, was the outstanding feature of the Junior division. McNutt to Pierson to Snape with McNutt following in was the secret of their success. Short, snappy passing and accurate shooting by any of these three accounted for most of the scoring. The guarding of Simpson and Ashbaugh on the other hand also was a big feature. In fact, their willingness to work together at the sacrifice of personal glory won them all places on the all-tourney squads.

Three members of the Buckeyes won places on the intermediate division all-tourney squad, including Wildblood at forward, Bailey at center and Skidmore at guard. Lewis, of Wellsburg, at a forward, and Turley, also of Wellsburg, at a guard, were the other two members of the all-star combine.

Wildblood was unanimously picked as the outstanding player, although Davis, who was captain of the Wellsburg high school team last year, outscored him. It was Jimmy's willingness in team play and his ability to work into the passes that won him the honor. Bailey outjumped his opponents consistently and played a steady floor game. Skidmore's guarding during the tourney and more particularly in the last game when he covered Davis like a tent won him a place.

The craze for lawn tennis which has sprung up during the last few years in Berlin is evidenced by the elaborate preparations that are being made for the celebration of "Tilden Week" in May, when William T. Tilden, the great American player, and his trouble of recruit wielders are to engage in exhibition and tournament play in the German capital.

Elks Defeat Rauhs Here In Hot Clash

In a sizzling, red hot encounter that gave over 400 local basketball fans a double attraction—basketball and the sport that made the Marquis of Queensberry famous—the East Liverpool Elks defeated the Enoch Rauh club, runner-up to the champion Lafayette five in the Allegheny county league, at the high school gym Saturday night, 52 to 43.

Both clubs waged battles as brilliantly offensive as any seen on the local court this season, the combined scores reaching almost to the century mark.

And in the final period, so fiery became the contenders, with victory liable to be decided either way with a flurry of field goals, several of the rivals resorted to fisticuffs. On one occasion part of the crowd was out on the floor, but animosities subsided just as quickly as they flared up and the game was finished with an olive branch waving triumphantly in the beak of the dove of peace. The dove had a hard night but was still in the ring at the final bell.

The Rauhs had a fast, scoring team, but insisted on roughing it up on the scrimmages and blocking and holding too frequently, and finally, when Guard Minehart, pal of Tony Paulsey's, went down with a sock in the solar plexus, the boys insisted on pairing off and deciding the issue by way of the manly art.

However, exclusive of the interruptions in the final period, the game was the most flashy exhibition of the latter part of the season.

It saw the return of Ray Wilde to the lineup. Wilde was out of a uniform for several weeks as a result of an injured ankle, and he still favored the ankle in Saturday night's clash, but at that managed to work into the team play in his own inimitable way and he hobbled for a trio of field goals during the festivities.

In the absence of Captain Simon Anderson and Charles McConville, both being unable to take part in the game, Dick Larkins, high school lad, and Dave Shupe were assigned to the guard posts. Dick has broken into fast company in only the last couple of weeks, but is taking to it like a duck to water and put up a great game in the first half. In the second he was replaced by Minehart of Paulsey's Campbell five, and Minehart proved a real tower of strength in the defense end of the court when the milling was most torrid.

Shupe played his regular game and—that, it chances, is good enough for any outfit in this league.

Big Tony, at center, was "on," especially in the final half when he dropped in five field goals.

Nate Lippe was gall and wormwood to his former teammates. They saw him loop the leather eight times during the fray, four in the first half and as many in the second. With four fouls more, Lippe led the scorers with a total of 20 points. Paulsey was next with 14.

The visitors were strongest in the first half when every man on the squad, save Paris at center, scored at least a couple of field goals, Berman bucketing four. The Rauh's guard plays were working nicely, Marx and Alman coming up the court for five two-pointers. After that the Elks bore down on their check-up system and the stuff was off.

The Antlers led by a score of 13 to 11 at the end om the first quarter, but the Rauhs overcame the slim margin and took the front position at the half when the count stood 26 to 24.

The Elks have been a notoriously strong third-quarter team during the entire season and they insisted on being themselves Saturday night.

When Referee Buxton sent them into action at the start of the third period the Antlers dropped in three field goals scarcely before their playmates of the evening could draw a man-sized breath.

The visitors took time out and held a conference. They decided that this business must go no further. However, they forgot to tell the Elks, and so the scoreboard numerals changed rapidly as Powell's pasers hung up 19 points, almost two a minute.

The score was 43 to 33 when the intermission arrived, and in the concluding quarter, the Rauhs scored 10 points and the locals nine.

What's What in Washington

BY CHARLES R STEWART

COMMERCE SECRETARY HOOVER KNOWS HOW TO PASS HIS JOBS ON

WASHINGTON, April 11. — Secretary of Commerce Hoover's lucky in being a super-executive, who knows how to pass his jobs—

HERBERT HOOVER

Yes, jobs. Plural. Very much so.

—who knows how to pass his jobs' details along to subordinates, to attend to and worry over, leaving nothing but the responsibility to fall on his shoulders.

Hoover just loves responsibility.

If he were a detail man, the prodigious number and variety of his duties would drive him cuckoo.

Not all the rest of the cabinet members put together have so many different kinds of work wished onto 'em. Each has a strenuous stunt, in its way, but it's a one-man stunt, not an army of specialists—and no two alike, either.

Hoover has to be a past master of nearly everything.

"Oh," Secretary of the Navy Wilbur may exclaim:

"I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sn tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Quite a few lines of endeavor for Secretary Wilbur to qualify as an expert in. But it will be noted that they're all nautical, with the possible exception of the cook, and even he undoubtedly is a sea-cook.

JUST so all up and down the line. Secretary of War Davis heads a big department, but it's purely military. Harry New has nothing to stew about but the postoffice. Nobody asks Attorney General Sargent to be anything but a lawyer or Secretary Kellogg to be anything but a diplomat. There's nothing to distract John J. Davis' attention from labor problems.

Bill Jardine concentrates solely on farming and Hoover helps him with that. Besides Indian affairs, Secretary of the Interior Work once had patents and mining to look after, but Hoover took the patent office and bureau of mines off his hands and included them in his own department.

Secretary Mellon's the only other man who has an extra burden to bear—besides being financial dictator. Prohibition enforcement.

BUT geewhillikens!—look at Hoover!

As secretary of commerce, it's his business to keep the country prosperous. He has to look after foreign as well as domestic trade.

He's a scientist. He weighs the earth and he weighs atoms. He's an electrician. He's an oceanographer. He's a chemist.

He has charge of lighthouses and navigation and steamboat inspection.

He's radio czar — all the more so since the creation of a radio commission which can't function without him.

He promotes aviation, takes the census, issues patents, encourages salmon fishing in Alaskan waters, develops rubber production in the tropics, and, as head of the bureau of mines, is the government's fall guy whenever there's a coal strike.

He's a member of the board of the Smithsonian Institution and the Council of National Defense and the National Screw Thread Commission and the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the Inter-American High Commission and the World War Foreign Debt Commission.

THESE simply are a few of the more obvious things Hoover has assimilated into his department of commerce. It's at least twice as large a department as when he was appointed head of it.

He can't see anything without wanting to manage it.

It's a commonplace in Washington that there will be but one cabinet member in a few years, if Hoover keeps his portfolio, and he'll be it, as secretary of everything.

Hudson Super-six On Display Today At Buckeye Garage

One of the most talked of cars of the year—the Hudson Super-Six—is receiving special showing at the salesrooms of the Buckeye Motor Company, Hudson-Essex distributor. Now that the spring season is here, this car is repeating the hold on public attention which it scored when introduced the first of this year. Scores of motorists are looking over its interesting points.

"In appearance and value as well as performance," said Ray Birch, "the brilliance of the new Hudson-Six it is equaled only by the costliest cars With the new Hudson you will never feel that the slightest effort is exerted by the motor in traveling as you wish, whether for short, swift spurts or sustained all-day runs.

"You round curves safely, due to the new low center of gravity. You do not shimmy. At all speeds, it is the easiest and safest driving and riding car in Hudson history. It is simply superb. The Super-Six principle is freed to the limit

"Yet with all its marvelous power, comfort, and performance—unlike anything American motorists have known—it is economical to operate. On road trips we have averaged from 15 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline and the car was being newly broken in, having just come from the factory when we started."

What's What in Washington

BY CHARLES R STEWART

COMMERCE SECRETARY HOOVER KNOWS HOW TO PASS HIS JOBS ON

WASHINGTON, April 11. — Secretary of Commerce Hoover's lucky in being a super-executive, who knows how to pass his jobs—

HERBERT HOOVER

Yes, jobs. Plural. Very much so.

—who knows how to pass his jobs' details along to subordinates, to attend to and worry over, leaving nothing but the responsibility to fall on his shoulders.

Hoover just loves responsibility.

If he were a detail man, the prodigious number and variety of his duties would drive him cuckoo.

Not all the rest of the cabinet members put together have so many different kinds of work wished onto 'em. Each has a strenuous stunt, in its way, but it's a one-man stunt, not an army of specialists—and no two alike, either.

Hoover has to be a past master of nearly everything.

"Oh," Secretary of the Navy Wilbur may exclaim:

"I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sn tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Quite a few lines of endeavor for Secretary Wilbur to qualify as an expert in. But it will be noted that they're all nautical, with the possible exception of the cook, and even he undoubtedly is a sea-cook.

JUST so all up and down the line. Secretary of War Davis heads a big department, but it's purely military. Harry New has nothing to stew about but the postoffice. Nobody asks Attorney General Sargent to be anything but a lawyer or Secretary Kellogg to be anything but a diplomat. There's nothing to distract John J. Davis' attention from labor problems.

Bill Jardine concentrates solely on farming and Hoover helps him with that. Besides Indian affairs, Secretary of the Interior Work once had patents and mining to look after, but Hoover took the patent office and bureau of mines off his hands and included them in his own department.

Secretary Mellon's the only other man who has an extra burden to bear—besides being financial dictator. Prohibition enforcement.

BUT geewhillikens!—look at Hoover!

As secretary of commerce, it's his business to keep the country prosperous. He has to look after foreign as well as domestic trade.

He's a scientist. He weighs the earth and he weighs atoms. He's an electrician. He's an oceanographer. He's a chemist.

He has charge of lighthouses and navigation and steamboat inspection.

He's radio czar — all the more so since the creation of a radio commission which can't function without him.

He promotes aviation, takes the census, issues patents, encourages salmon fishing in Alaskan waters, develops rubber production in the tropics, and, as head of the bureau of mines, is the government's fall guy whenever there's a coal strike.

He's a member of the board of the Smithsonian Institution and the Council of National Defense and the National Screw Thread Commission and the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the Inter-American High Commission and the World War Foreign Debt Commission.

THESE simply are a few of the more obvious things Hoover has assimilated into his department of commerce. It's at least twice as large a department as when he was appointed head of it.

He can't see anything without wanting to manage it.

It's a commonplace in Washington that there will be but one cabinet member in a few years, if Hoover keeps his portfolio, and he'll be it, as secretary of everything.

Hudson Super-six On Display Today At Buckeye Garage

One of the most talked of cars of the year—the Hudson Super-Six—is receiving special showing at the salesrooms of the Buckeye Motor Company, Hudson-Essex distributor. Now that the spring season is here, this car is repeating the hold on public attention which it scored when introduced the first of this year. Scores of motorists are looking over its interesting points.

"In appearance and value as well as performance," said Ray Birch, "the brilliance of the new Hudson-Six it is equaled only by the costliest cars. With the new Hudson you will never feel that the slightest effort is exerted by the motor in traveling as you wish, whether for short, swift spurts or sustained all-day runs.

"You round curves safely, due to the new low center of gravity. You do not shimmy. At all speeds, it is the easiest and safest driving and riding car in Hudson history. It is simply superb. The Super-Six principle is freed to the limit.

"Yet with all its marvelous power, comfort, and performance—unlike anything American motorists have known—it is economical to operate. On road trips we have averaged from 15 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline and the car was being newly broken in, having just come from the factory when we started."

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

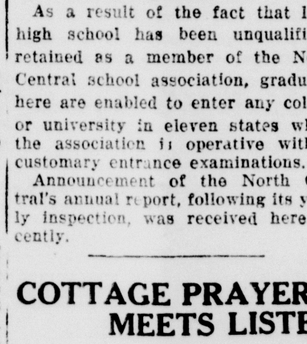
What Pretty Girl Did For Sick Stomach



Miss E. Rich of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I don't know what the cause was, but every few days my stomach would feel all bloated up with gas, my appetite was poor and I felt sick to my stomach—to say nothing of headaches.

200 DROWNED AS SHIP SINKS

Today

Uncle Sam Has No India.

The Atheist Folly.

Too Little, Then Too Much.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

BRITAIN will do anything to maintain her property and prestige in China, because she must.

Three hundred million Asiatics ruled by Britain in India are watching China, and asking themselves "if four hundred million Asiatic can drive the British out of China, why can not we drive them out of India?

Because her prestige in Asia and throughout the empire requires it, Britain will do whatever she must to hold her position at trade and localized authority in China, under treaties long recognized. And the British war department will bomb the Chinese, use all modern war methods, if argument fails.

But what about this country? There is no must for us. We have no empire in Asia staked on our ability to coerce China. Some big oil interests are involved, but those could be bought off, for less than any little war could cost.

France and Japan show us what should be done. Japan will protest against actions of the Chinese mobs, but use no force, that is the latest announcement. France will look on, let Britain attend to China, with the help of this country, if we are fools enough to create a serious quarrel with an unfortunate country, torn by revolution and civil war.

We are friendly to Great Britain, and should like to co-operate with the British in maintaining world peace. But we are, let us hope, not going to start a Chinese war, to solidify British prestige in India. Britain has great influence here. Our biggest international banking institution, as much British as it is American, and owing the revival of its fortunes to England and the big war, has great influence with our national administration.

Millions of Americans that would pay the bills, business men of this country whose prosperity unnecessary war would menace, are interested in this Chinese question.

In the big war we pulled chestnuts out of the fire for all Europe, to the tune of ten billions sent abroad and fifty billions spent, squandered and grafted at home.

Are we going to spend more billions, kill more men, because Britain needs to beat China, to preserve her Asiatic prestige, and Indian empire?

The British government it is said, urging this country to join in coercing China, "finds our attitude disappointing vague." Let's hope our attitude will become definite and take this form:

No thanks. We are not professional, incurable chestnut pullers. We intend to protect our own citizens, by taking

MINISTER ASKS SACCO-VANZETTI TRIAL REVIEW

Massachusetts Assembly Urged to Appoint Commission.

NEW TRIAL PLAN

Two Men Sentenced to Die for Double Murder.

BOSTON, April 11.—Appointment of a commission to examine and review all acts and proceedings of the commonwealth against Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti under sentence to die in the electric chair the week of July 10 for the slaying of a paymaster and his guard in South Braintree, was asked of the legislature in a resolution drawn up today by Rev. HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS:

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, is a somewhat colorless little girl, who works in the mailing room of a printing and bookbinding establishment. She and the office boy have been seen holding hands—otherwise there has been no romance in her life. One day a girl who had formerly worked in the mailing room comes to call. Her name is

LUCILLE OVERMAN, and she is now working in pictures. She takes Hattie to the studio where she, Lucille, is to have a screen test. Hattie there is seen by the famous director,

DE BRISSAC, who makes a screen test of her and offers her a contract. Hattie lives with her married sister,

ALICE, and her baby daughter, Emily, and

GRANDMA, a querulous semi-invalid. They all start for California with De Brissac, who suggests books for Hattie to read to "form her mind." On the train she meets

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. They arrive at Beverly. Hattie goes to the studio to find De Brissac, and he kisses her. Clandestinely, so that De Brissac will not know, Hattie and O'Malley meet and go out together. A dark little girl comes to Hattie's dressing room, saying it used to be hers. De Brissac wants Hattie to go away for a week with him on his yacht. The little dark girl comes to his office while Hattie is there and tries to throw acid on her, but De Brissac prevents her, although his hand is burned. Hattie tries to tell Alice that she can't go back to De Brissac's studio to work, but her sister tells her they need more money and that she must stick to her contract. She refuses to go to De Brissac's office again after work and meets O'Malley and goes to dinner with him. O'Malley wants Hattie to leave De Brissac and try for work in another studio. He tells her that he is crazy about her.

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

"I've tried to fight this off," continued Henry. "Ever since we first talked on the train. Remember? I really haven't any business thinking about marriage, with every cent tied up in my experiment—"

"I know," she breathed, trying to hold back an exultant smile.

"—but when your thoughts are full of a girl, when you're clean off your head about her, what's a fellow going to do?" His words were rushing now. Nervously he turned a fork over and over and over; stared down at it as he talked. "You see, I've got some capital interested here in L. A. And there's some men up in San Francisco that say they want to talk with me as soon as I can get up there. I'm going up Saturday. The unexpected sweep of this new radio business has got 'em all on the run, even the very men that laughed at me last year. Oh, I wish to God I had the thing all put across, nailed down, so that I could take you right out of this dam' picture game and put you in a lovely home in Pasadena. This is no life for a dear little girl like you. I've been through it. I know. You can't tell me a thing . . . . Hattie, I can't ask you to marry me right away, but will you tell me I can take you on as a responsibility and straighten things out for you—get you away from that man? We needn't say anything to anyone just yet. But we could understand each other and I could work for you. And the minute I get the capital lined up and the company formed we could be married. Will you tell me that you are with me? Think how it would stimulate me—give me the courage to go on fighting for the big things."

He reached across the table and gripped her hands. The tears welled up to her eyes; she musn't cry, not here in this public place. She felt all warm and soft. Then fear came, and she couldn't help glancing out under her wet lashes about the room. What if Mr. de Brissac should walk in on them. He might, as easily as not. Or someone who would tell him . . . . Should she tell Henry about him—about his kisses, about her narrow escape. The unhappy thought came that only the accident had saved her. And that wouldn't be character on her part; it would be nothing more noble than fright. She knew that, saw it painfully clear before her mind's eye. Even before that, she couldn't have resisted him. He had told her repeatedly in that startling point blank way of his that he preferred not to risk carrying her too far emotionally until the picture was finished. His shadow lay over this table even while Henry ardently pressed her hands.

"Hattie, will you promise to marry me?"

And then that warm pressure brought hope. Henry was so nice; not one of the careless men—Beverly seemed sometimes, like New York, to be full of those—but a dreamer, an enthusiast. It would be wonderful to be married . . . . A way out . . .

"What if it shouldn't work out?" Her voice was husky and thin.

"It's got to work out."

"I'm thinking of Alice and Emily—and Gran'ma."

"They're all dependent on you?"

"Yes."

"Oh, that isn't right."

"But that's the way it is. And I dragged them all out here. And gran'ma's sick so much—the doctors and everything. If it shouldn't work out . . . ."

"I tell you it's got to. It's a shame that you have to work at all. But I tell you, Hattie, if you will stick with me I'll see that you don't have to work much longer. Probably not more than another picture. You see, with you back of me I'll have the pep to go out and fight all Wall Street. It isn't as if I didn't—men have swung the capital before now—why some of the biggest fellows in the picture business started without a cent not ten years ago. And I've got the goods. I can show them. . . . Hattie, will you promise to marry me?"

There was a long silence. He was still pressing her hands. She began not to care whether anyone noticed them or not. That softness which had been tinged with unhappiness like a haunt was a glow now that enveloped her. Soon he would have the capital. And anyway, even if all his dreams couldn't come true, why shouldn't she just go out and marry him? They could doubtless help somewhat with the family. And Alice, if she did pick up a job, at least would have one fewer mouth to feed. Gran'ma might come and live with them part of the time. Reasons, justifications, came rushing into her mind. Didn't she have her own life to live? Was it fair for all of them to plump down on her, keep her in the dreary routine of the studio, fairly drive her to de Brissac?

She whispered—

"Yes."

Then the waiter came. But later, in his little car, down by the boundless sea, he took her in his arms and kissed her as he now had a right to do. And she found herself clinging to him, returning his kisses. But an unforseen fear came. Would he wonder that she could be so ardent? Would he suspect? . . . She was more restrained after that thought. And she made him take her home early. She was utterly tired.

He was kind. But he talked and talked about the radio pictures. He said he wanted her to understand his work. She felt, too, that she must. But it was hard, nestling against him, fighting off a new sort of dizzy weakness and grateful for the chill night air on her temples, to catch more than the eager note in his voice as he talked on. It was a nice voice.

She promised to bring her contract in the morning. It was in her top bureau drawer.

Naturally I am vitally concerned about the voices of my players, so I always advise the one cigarette that I discovered many years ago that does not impair control of the subtlest vocal shadings or cause huskiness or harshness. I mean the 'Lucky Strike.' It is the player's best friend."

The men are W. A. Horger, Oral H. Kingert, Henry M. Foster and Pearl H. Shreeve. In addition to the bonus each received a safe driver's medal, furnished by the Ocean Accident & Guarantee corporation which company carries the liability insurance for the Freedom company.

Plan of rewarding drivers who had no accidents during the year was introduced by the Freedom company in 1923 when 24 employees received $10 each. In 1925 this bonus was increased to $20. The number of employees benefiting last year was 89.

DINNER STORIES.

Little Roberta knew very little about death. She had never been to a funeral, but there was a cemetery nearby where she used to wander in search of violets in the spring. Now Roberta had a small kitten, "Johanna," which was very sickly and it finally died. Roberta wept copiously and refused to be comforted until her uncle promised to bury the cat in the back yard. He made a gravestone for the departed pet, then asked his small niece what she wished written on it. The youngster hurried to the cemetery then returned to give the following instructions.

"Write this," she directed. "Here lies the fur part of Johanna. The rest is in heaven. Johanna was a good cat."

Doing His Duty.

On the concert program of one of the larger New York orchestras not long since was Beethoven's "Leonore" overture, the two climaxes of which each are followed by a trumpet passage offstage. The first climax came, but not a sound from the trumpet.

The conductor, considerably annoyed, went on to the second. Again there was silence. This time the overture being finished, he rushed into the wings.

There he found the trumpet player still arguing with the house fireman

"I tell you, you can't play that thing back there!" the latter was saying. "There's a concert going on."

Oldsmobile Uses Cadmium Plating On External Bolts

Cadmicum plating is being used by Oldsmobile on all external bolts, nuts, washers and screws to prevent rust spots forming. This latest improvement, which has just been placed in production, is another of those features Oldsmobile engineers have perfected to improve the appearance and add to the life of Oldsmobiles.

The cadmicmu used for the plating is a white, malleable, ductile metal found in the comparatively rare mineral greenockite. One of its principal uses heretofore has been the manufacture of amalgam for teeth filling It is rust and corrosion proof, and, being comparatively soft, it does not crack as would a hard plating when the bolts and screws are tightened by hard and sharp tools such as screw drivers and wrenches.

In the past it has been the general practice in the industry to enamel or nickle the screws, bolts, washers and nuts used to fasten the fenders, dust aprons and tire carriers of the body of the car. Under this former method there was a tendency for the enamel or nickel to crack and chip off, leaving a space of bare metal on which rust quickly formed.

Nine Musical Magpies At Ceramic Theatre Tonight

Plantation Band and Jubilee Singers Appear With Screen Hit, "Kosher Kitty Kelly."

The Nine Musical Magpies, celebrated Plantation band and Jubilee singers, will appear at the Ceramic theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in conjunction with the feature picture, "Kosher Kitty Kelly."

Tickets on a four-door Nash sedan, to be given away by the theatre management, will be distributed to patrons.

The Magpies, in silk and satin costumes, and in a scenic effect in which they poke their heads from the top of sunflowers, will offer a high class act.

Viola Dana is the star of "Kosher Kitty Kelly, a comedy-romance that is one of the finest bits of film humor in years.

There are two pairs of sweethearts in the story, Kitty and her Irish cop and Rosie who loves a Jewish doctor. The trouble starts when Kitty decides to punish her lover and annexes a new beau in the person of the Jewish doctor. This is the call to arms for the entire Irish and Jewish settlement on Avenue A, and an issue for civil war in the Kelly and Feinbaum homes where the two girls are in disgrace over their choice of prospective husbands. However, the story has a novel twist and the solution to the tangled love affair is a smashing surprise.

Safe Driving Campaign Results

East Liverpool motorists seemingly profited by the lessons taught in the Review-Tribune's Safe Driving campaign last week, in which the Columbiana County Motor club and the police department co-operated, for no serious traffic accidents were reported over the week-end.

Other sections of Ohio, however, were not so fortunate. Four persons were killed, one of them an East Palestine patrolman, and nine injured, at least one seriously, over the state yesterday. Two deaths resulted when cars plunged down embankments, another as a result of a machine crashing against a tree, while the fourth fatality was attributed to the so-called "road hog."

As the Ceramic City has learned, safe driving pays. Comparatively few accidents occur when motorists comply with speed limits, obey traffic signals and remember that pedestrians have some rights.

All credit for the reduction in the traffic toll, however, does not belong to the automobile driver. No small share of it is the street car operator's. And in compiling honor rolls motormen should not be overlooked. This is especially true on the Grandview division of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company's lines, for trolley car operators must keep their eyes open in negotiating turns at Broadway and Sixth street, Walnut and Sixth streets and the Walnut and Avondale crossings on Bradshaw avenue. Their vigilance has averted many accidents at these interesections.

Let's not forget the lessons of Safe Driving Week.

"Master Criminals"

A veteran sheriff who has known many thousands of criminals says of them:

"I am convinced that all crooks are cowards at heart. And there is no such thing as a smart crook. These so-called 'master mind' criminals exist only in the story books. A man with brains knows it doesn't pay to commit crimes.

"My experience shows that gun bravery is the only kind ever displayed by crooks. Take their weapons away, and they are tame indeed."

Most practical men who have been able to observe closely the criminal population filing through our jails and courts seem to hold about the same view. The clever, masterly criminal is a creature of literary imagination. When we do seem to see such criminals at long intervals functioning in real life, and coming into court with a sort of glamor about them when they are brought to bay, the glamor is still largely literary—a product of publicity. Enterprising reporters, vying with novelists and dramatists to make such characters as interesting as possible, do their best with the material they have. Yet between the lines can usually be read the fact that the celebrated prisoner is, after all, pretty shallow, and seems brilliant only in comparison with his more stupid brethren.

That "gun bravery" the sheriff speaks of is a real thing. These weaklings and social misfits are brave only when they have a deadly weapon in their hands, and their victims have not. Here is a fact which lends still more force to the wide-spread demand for the disarmament of criminals, which can be accomplished only by disarming all who have no legitimate use for weapons.

Malaria as Medicine

"Benign malaria" is what doctors call the disease caused by the bite of the anopheles mosquito. And benign it is, sure enough, as used nowadays for the cure of one of the most dreaded of diseases.

The new treatment of paresis, or softing of the brain, is one of the most remarkable things in the history of medicine. It was discovered somehow that paresis patients improved when they contracted malaria. Sometimes the lesser disease seems to work a complete cure of the greater. Physicians therefore are treating paretic cases in many parts of the United States by inoculating the patient with malaria germs of the right sort.

One of the most curious things about this curious treatment is that the benevolent fever germs have to be carried in a human bottle. They will remain alive only in the human blood stream. So a novel occupation develops. Persons with malaria in their systems are sent to provide enough of their malaria-laden blood, fresh and effective, for injection into the veins of paretics. Or paretic patients are brought to a hospital possessing an authentic malaria case, for a blood transfusion.

It may be that this method of curing one disease with another can be carried much further. More revelations along this line will be awaited with interest.

A Chinaman named Mah, a former officer of the Cantonese government, is in this country studying labor and commerce. Now, where's Jongg?

What automobiles need now, more than anything else, is rubber fenders that will give without crumpling and spring back into place as good as ever.

China has done 'most everything else at some time or other in the last 4,000 years, but this seems to be the first time she's gone democratic.

A Practical Use for the Blame Books— By Fontaine Fox

BOTH BEGAN WITH AN O.

The poor traffic cop was out of temper. All day at the bridge entrance he had contended with motorists, truck drivers and teamsters who, through confusion or plain stupidity, disregarded his signals.

Presently along came a stubborn person on top of a moving wagon, who got everything snarled up. This individual appeared to know nothing about the rules of the road. He had to be informed on fundamentals and he also had the points of the compass designated for him with some sarcasm. On top of all this he started forward on one whistle instead of two.

The cop backed him and as he unbuttoned his coat to produce his pencil and notebook, asked:

"What's your name?"

"It's on the side of me van. I own this outfit. You kid read it there."

The policeman moved alongside to view some boards plastered with mud and said:

"It's obliterated."

"Yer a liar," answered the offender belligerently. "It's O'Brien."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and received a pleasant telegram from Nellie Revell out in California and a dozen other birthday greetings or I would have forgotten the gloomy truth. I am past 40, gray and not so spry. And a letter from E. W. Howe saying he is en route to the city.

So to Dr. Campbell, my dentist, and so happy my molars needed no tinkering I settled my account of a year or more and took him off to lunch at the Voisin and saw among others there Natacha Rambova, Regina Wallace, and Dr. George Dorsey.

Walked among the huge mansions on upper Park Avenue and wondered how a man could live content in a 50-room house, and so home and at my typewriter until Ed Nolan, Will Hogg and Grace Morse came and all of us to Lindy's, a theatrical cafe. Then early to bed.

This chorus girl protection nonsense has gone about far enough. A press agent blurbs that a certain theater has opened a mother's room—for mamas of chorines who fear to permit their darlings to go to the theater unchaperoned. The dangers besetting a Broadway chorus girl journeying along to the theater are equivalent to those facing elderly spinsters attending a Christmas cantata at Three Forks, Neb., on a rainy afternoon. Hundreds of chorus girls go to and from the theater nightly and those not patently flirtatious are no more bothered by stage door Johns or other pavement sheiks than the average girl repulsing such advances. Cheap sports in search of amorous sidewalk conquests are not looking for ladies of the ensemble. They are entirely too expensive.

Incidentally the curb flirts who roam Fifth avenue in their autos in search of pulchritudinous pickups have been almost entirely squelched. It was an old story of setting a thief to catch a thief. A band of singularly adroit ladies made the avenue their rendezvous and found the "pickings" literally just perfectly dandy. They accepted advances, nor would they object to impromptu snuggling parties in a whirl through the park on the way to their addresses. And a little later the Romeos would discover the loss of their wallets and watches. It was the sort of pilfering they would hesitate to relate to the police. But it cured many of curb conquests.

One of those impudently youthful playwright with a tidy technique for sarcasm was greeted at tea the other afternoon by a society lady who made a serious excursion into the films. Said she: "I saw you play last night but I didn't laugh once."

"That's strange," he replied. "I saw your film and laughed all the time. Now let's split a beaker of cocaine and be friends."

Those rare modern who are reputed to breakfast on cocktails at sundown, inhabit the potted woods of night clubs and are everlastingly dancing, have found a final stop off for their nightly pleasures. It is a little breakfast room in the East Fifties that opens at 5:30 a. m., and has a dance orchestra.

And the merriest touch of all in this place is the inspiration of an alert headache powder manufacturer who has placed a large glass bowl filled with free samples of his powders in the entrance hall.

Effect of Broadway drama is noted in a cafe neary where the menu card announces: "Potatoes in the nude."

An idea of the Broadway improvisation on gossip. In a night club recently a lady in a party saw a caricature on the wall she desired. So in a hoydenish manner she swiped it. A dozen times I have heard of an angry wife storming there to tear her husband's caricature from the wall.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Hudson River Bridge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11. — Everything that is superlative in bridges will be combined in the new Hudson river structure that is to connect Fort Washington in Upper Manhattan and Fort Lee on the New Jersey side of the river. It will be the world's longest suspension bridge it will be the product of the greatest genius there is in bridge building, it will be the most expensive structure of its kind, and it will probably accommodate the greatest amount of traffic of any bridge in the world.

It will have a span almost two-thirds of a mile in length, it will cost $50,000,000 or more, and when it is opened to the public in 1932 it is expected that during the first year it will be used by more than 8,000,000 vehicles that carry almost 19,000,000 passengers, by 1,500,000 pedestrians, and by almost 500,000 buses. This traffic will produce an annual revenue in excess of $5,000,000, with toll rates averaging 50 cents each for pleasure cars and trucks, $1 each for buses, and 5 cents for each pedestrian and each passenger carried in a vehicle.

When the bridge is ready to take up its share of the burden of getting people in and out of New York it will have two 24-foot roadways that will each accommodate two to three lanes of travel and two 6-foot sidewalks. Its annual traffic capacity then will be 10,000,000 vehicles.

Later this capacity may be doubled by the opening of an additional 40-foot central roadway that will accommodate four lanes of travel, and a lower deck is projected that can carry four electric railroad tracks. This increasing the capacity of the bridge will also increase its cost by almost a third, running the total up to approximately $65,000,000.

Work To Be Begun May 1.

Actual construction work on the giant structure will be begun May 1, it has been announced, and it is expected that five full years will be required to complete it. The first work that will be undertaken will be the foundations for the two legs of the $6,000,000 tower at the Jersey end. These foundations must be sunk 100 feet to bed rock, and some idea of their size may be conveyed when it is said that a modern ten-story apartment building could be dropped out of sight in the holes that will be excavated for them.

The towers, and those at the Manhattan end as well, will be 650 feet high—almost 100 feet higher than the Washington monument. They will carry the cable that will support a central span 3,500 feet long and of a dead weight of 120,000 tons of steel at an average height of about 200 feet above the river. Engineers say that carrying this tremendous load is not only structurally possible but is well within the structural possibilities which they place at 10,000 feet or more. Thus a two-mile suspension bridge may be one of the engineering triumphs of the future.

The new bridge will be twice the length of the new Delaware river bridge, its nearest competitor in point of size, and if it develops traffic proportionately as has the Delaware bridge no time will be lost in enlarging its capacity to the maximum. The Delaware bridge which connects the cities of Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., is already carrying twice the volume of traffic that was estimated for it.

The towers of the Hudson structure are to be of steel, later to be filled in with solid masonry. The anchorage on the New Jersey shore will be in the solid rock of the Palisades, and each cable will have its individual rock chamber which at the mouth will be about as large as a subway tube. No natural rock is available for the anchorage on the Manhattan side, so it will be an artificial mass of granite and concrete.

In the building of suspension bridges the first problem in connection with the bridge itself is to establish a continuous connection through the air from shore to shore. In the days of old this was frequently accomplished by attaching a thread to an arrow which was shot across the stream, and then by successive changes this thread was superseded by a cable of steel. When the suspension bridge was built across the Niagara river by Roebling it was found necessary because of the nature of the Niagara gorge to use a kite.

Boats Will Be Utilized.

But neither the arrow nor the kite will be utilized in effecting the air connection over the Hudson. The first would be impossible, as there has never been a bow or bowman that could shoot an arrow more than two-thirds of a mile, and the second is impracticable. Instead boats will be used, and with these and shore winches wire ropes will be strung across the river from tower to tower, first resting on the bed of the river, and then being hoisted to the tops of the towers.

These wire ropes become the support of temporary working platforms known as footwalks, of which there must be one for each cable to be installed. Footwalks are made of sections of cleated plank, and each section is slid down the pair of supporting ropes into position. In order to

"——— And let the rest of the world go by."

You've heard the song. It sounds good, but it's all wrong. Don't do it! If you're in business, if you've something to sell, you can't afford to let the rest of the world go by!

Stop them, bring them in, sell them something they need and you'll both profit. You can't sandbag them, of course, but you don't have to. Just a bit of a paint brush, in the fingers of Les Trainer, can turn the trick. Advertising . . . there's the pull that brings the public to your values.

But it must be natural . . . natural as a baby's smile and just as attractive and unaffected.

And that requires true artistry and command. With both of these, as well as considerable experience in his business, Trainer, who less than a year year ago embarked "on his own," has established a rapidly growing business.

He is helping to make the "signs of the times," big ones, small ones, all kinds, for outside and inside, highly decorative placards, or just p'ain lettering, as your needs prescribe.

You'll find him at his shop, in Green Lane, a block from the Diamond, or at his phone, 1466-M, for estimates.

Adam and Craig Can Help You in Buying Your New Homesite

The task of buying a home, although it's really not a task . . . more like a mission of joy, is nevertheless a proposition conducive of more or less worry, especially when the prospective home owner is embarking on his first venture in real estate.

Consequently, when the services and advice of a reputable dealer in real estate are always available, the first step of the man who expects to buy should be to confer with the dealer and get started on the right foot.

Adam and Craig, Sixth street, have operated a real estate and insurance firm here for a number of years and a resume of their accomplishments is first-class proof of their business ability.

Adam and Craig are agents for the Gaston Place allotment, on the California Hollow road, where a number of excellent home sites are available away from the noise, clamor and dirt of the city proper, and yet within reach of practically all modern facilities.

In addition they ordinarily have a number of other good opportunities in real estate and homes. They may be able to help you. Give them a ring—Main 263.

Pastry Dessert, From Newell System Bake Shop, "Makes" Meal

Just as no automobile would be complete without all four wheels, or a cloud without its silver lining, or a flapper without her lipstick, no well regulated, hunger satisfying, taste tempting meal or luncheon can be complete without its dessert, and why not make it pastry?

How about some delicious fruit tarts, or lady fingers and ice cream, a cream puff, or macaroons, or perhaps cholocate eclaires of a quality such as has made the Newell System bakery a mecca for those busy housewives who would rather buy than cook it themselves and at the same time save money?

The Newell System Bakery, in the Diamond, widely known for its bread, also . . . the "bread that makes the butterfly," can supply you in all these needs, as well as other delectable dinner and luncheon accessories such as gingerbread, pie, cake, cookies, Parkerhouse rolls, coffee cake and other tidbits.

And don't forget, this is Hot Cross Bun week. You can get them at the Newell System Bakery.

Local Firm Can Save You a Dollar a Ton On Sand and Gravel

Distance lends enchantment, as the adage goes, but, as a general rule, it costs more and doesn't make the object in question any better after all, whether it's shoelaces and hairpins or sand and gravel.

And speaking of the latter, it's an actual fact that folks here, buying from the East Liverpool Sand Co., can save a whole dollar on the ton. Prices being equal (and the local concern's are as reasonable as any of them) it'll cost you about 70 cents a ton freight and 30 cents more for handling, to buy out of town.

Because of this saving, plus good service and quality materials, the local firm is supplying the new Laughlin plant and will handle the E. M. Knowles work.

In addition they're supplying a Pennsylvania highway project, the West Virginia end of the road through Chester to Pittsburgh, the California Hollow road, as well as jobs in the Youngstown district and elsewhere.

Their product, brought from the bottom of the Ohio, by a modern bucket ladder dredge, is thoroughly washed and screened. It is sent out from a 24-car siding at the plant in West Second street, and local delivery is made through a four-truck fleet. They'll send you sand, gravel and cement all in one load—a big advantage.

Swiss Watch Repair Exclusive Feature Of Prescott's Shop

Factory experience, obtainable nowhere but at the factory, the actual source, plus years of training in the general jewelry repairing, an exclusive service on Swiss watches, together with native ability and business character, are, summed up briefly, the principal reasons for the remarkable growth of the R. F. Prescott jewelry and repair shop, 704 St. Clair avenue, established less than a year ago.

Prescott brings to the city, following his factory work, a skill in watch repairing obtained at the Elgin and Illinois plants and with Ralph Lazarus, New York importer of Swiss watches. As a result, it is not necessary now, in reference to the latter, to send work out of town for competent repair attention.

Prescott is a diamond setter, remodels old type jewelry to conform with the latest styles, designs jewelry to order and repairs Westminster chime clocks, having taken a special course in this.

He is able to buy direct from the factory, reducing costs to an amazing extent, a small overhead also contributing to a savings.

Your work, at Prescott's is certain of careful, skillful attention.

Cain Machine Co., in Business Here for More Than 26 Years

An unmatchable personnel of directing officers, of character and integrity, as well as a reputation built of perfection in their products and their work over a period of 26 years or more, combine to establish the Cain Machine Company, machinists and engineers, as one of the leading industrial organizations of its kind in eastern Ohio.

Just as the proof of the pudding is in the eating, the proof of their efficiency, especially in the pottery machine line, is seen in the fact that their work is shipped to practically all parts of the United States and points in Canada, as well.

The Cain Brothers Company was organized in 1901 and have been in continuous operation since that time, doing a general line of pottery machining, contract work, and general repairing of all kinds.

Te firm was incorporated in 1916 as the Cain Machine Company. The officers are: J. W. Cain, president; J. C. Cain, vice president; T. F. Cain, manager and treasurer, and E. L. Cain, secretary.

The little jobs, of which there are many from the immediate vicinity, get just as careful attention as the larger projects, principally from the pottery and chemical trade, at the Cain plant.

BULLET WOUND FATAL TO CHILD

Wellsburg Boy Killed While Playing With Automatic Pistol.

James Charles Cheeks, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cheeks, of Washington Pike, one mile east of Wellsburg, died yesterday afternoon in a Wheeling hospital as a result of a bullet wound at the base of the brain sustained while playing with a revolver in his home.

His mother and father had called the child to breakfast and he had appeared with an alarm clock in his hand. He was ordered back to the bed room with the clock, being told to dress and come to the table. Only a few moments after the boy had retired to the sleeping room which he shared with his parents a shot was heard and Mr. and Mrs. Cheeks rushed into the room to find the child lying on the floor, unconscious.

The automatic pistol, kept beneath Mr. Cheek's pillow as a protection against marauders, was clutched in the boy's hand. He had evidently taken it from its hiding place and then fired it into his mouth while playing with it. The parents rushed their child to the hospital in the hope that an operation might be performed in time to save his life.

ROAD BUILDING MAY BE DEFERRED

Road building in West Virginia during the next two years hangs in the balance at Charleston, and there is some question as to whether or not the conferees from the house and senate named to effect a compromise on the bills providing for reissuance of redeemed road bonds, according to a statement made last night by State Senator Wright Hugus of the first senatorial district at his home in Wheeling.

"Unless a compromise is reached there will be no road building in the state for the next two years," said the senator.

ESCAPED SHORT TERMERS CAUGHT

Fugitives from the custody of Warden S. P. Smith, of the state prison are being picked up by the police officers about the state, the warden said last night. Three or four escaped men are now in custody at points down-state, and will be returned to the prison during the ensuing week, the warden said.

Thurl Wiseman and Louis Sylvestor, the latest to walk away from the state prison mine, are still at liberty.

The warden said that the short term men wander about for a time, but eventually drift to their homes, probably believing that the local officials would not be advised that they had escaped.

"The short termers often get away from the guards at the road camps and at the farm," said the warden. "They are sent out on trust, and sometimes the temptation to escape becomes too great. We get a greater portion of them back, but it costs us $50 reward for each, in addition to the transportation expense. The homing instinct leads to the capture of nearly every one of the men brought back in to serve out their terms," the warden added.

POWERS SEND IDENTIC PROTESTS ON NANKING INCIDENTS

NATIONALISTS' ARMY PREPARES TO TURN GUNS UPON PUKOW

Retreat of Cantonese to South Bank of Yangtse Continues.

MOBS AT SOOCHOW

Chang Tso Lin Asks U. S. for Financial Assistance.

LONDON, April 11. — The identic notes of protest by the powers on the Nanking incidents have been delivered to the Chinese Nationalists, it was announced today. The foreign office will release the British note late this afternoon for publication in morning papers of Tuesday.

Copyright, 1927, International News Service.

PEKING, April 11.—"This is not the time for the powers to send protests. It would be wiser if the powers would back me indirectly and financially making it possible for me to fight the communist elements."

Chang Tso Lin, northern war lord, made this statement today in an exclusive interview granted the International News Service.

Chang Tso Lin desires the United States to advance the North China government a credit of $100,000,000.

Chang Tso Lin, in the course of the interview, expressed great surprise that an American evacuation in North China should have been ordered.

Plan To Bombard Rail Center.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—The Chinese Nationalists have brought up guns from the Nanking fortifications and trained them upon Pukow, indicating that they intend to withdraw from that important railroad center and then bombard it when the northern troops occupy it.

The retreat of the Cantonese troops from the north to the south bank of the Yangtse river continued today.

Gen. Sun Chuan Fang, Northern commander, is driving hard against the Southerners' lines between Shiherwei (30 miles northeast of Nanking) and Tungcho. He has forced a crossing of the Yangtse and is threatening Tanyang.

Another section of Marshal Chang Tso Lin's Northern army, under Gen. Chang Tsung Chang, is pressing hard in the direction of Pukow.

Deserters Return.

Many Nationalist soldiers, who had previously deserted from Gen Sun's army to the Southern army, are now reported to be returning to the flag of their original allegiance. This has materially weakened the Cantonese defenses at numerous points necessitating the evacuation of a number of places in North Kiangsu province.

The Japanese remaining at Soochow are planning to evacuate at once owing to increasing turbulence on the part of the Chinese laborers.

Mobs at Soochow made a series of hostile demonstrations against the Japanese compound and surrounded the consulate, holding prisoner a number of Japanese families that had taken refuge there.

May Move Capital to Nanking.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Chinese nationalists are preparing to remove their capital from Hankow and establish it at Nanking according to a dispatch to the navy department today from Admiral C. S. Williams, commanding the Asiatic fleet.

Reverses for the Cantonese in their drive northward were confirmed by Admiral Williams' dispatch.

SHANGHAI, April 11.—Military difficulties of the Nationalists attracted greater attention here today than the delivery of the protest of the powers on the Nanking incidents.

Nanking dispatches tonight declare that the Nationalists are in disorderly retreat, fleeing along the Tsinan-Pukow railroad in the direction of Pukow.

Gov. Donahey Hits Slot Machine Men In Senate Message

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—Governor Vic Donahey this afternoon appealed to the Ohio legislature to "legislate for the protection of the children of the state, instead of acting for the protection of the slot-machine gamblers that are waxing fat on the nickels and dimes of our children."

Denying the charge that the De Armond anti-slot machine bill, defeated in the senate here last week, was "written by the attorney for a slot machine manufacturer and distributor and introduced in the interest of the manufacturer and distributor," the governor, in a message to the Ohio senate, this afternoon said:

"I again appeal to you to enact a really effective law against slot machines of a gambling nature. If the De Armond bill requires an amendment in order to prohibit the one type of machine Senator J. Eugene Roberts, of Mahoning county, and Correspondent Foster R. A. Forster a member of the Ohio legislature correspondents' association' say it would legalize, I hope you will so amend it."

them out of China. Then we shall leave China to the Chinese, as we keep America for Americans. If our British brothers feel that they have a Chinese war, that is their affair. We shall neither share it nor finance it.

THE Rev. Dr. Straton, forceful fundamentalist is suing the head of the American association for the advancement of atheism. Of all folly, atheism is the greatest. If a passenger on shipboard answers "nobody to the question "who runs this ship?" you charitably conclude that he is feeble minded. And if there were truth in atheism which is inconceivable, it would be a hideous truth, depriving humanity of its greatest comfort.

The earth is a cannonball express, going around the sun on a 558,000,000-mile journey every year, at a speed exceeding 63,000 miles an hour, warmed by a star nearly 100,000,000 miles ay, surrounded by an ocean of ether, at absolute zero.

Whoever thinks such a scheme as that has no engineer, should be pitied, not sued.

WHILE since you were told "our oil wealth will soon be exhausted." That helped oil stocks. Now the question is "what on earth shall we do with all the oil, new oil fields and oil wells?" That is not so good for oil stocks.

Standard Oil of California has drastically cut the price it pays for crude oil, cut averaging 50 cents a barrel. Ships and locomotives are burning oil, and its use for heating purposes spreads daily. There are 1,000,000 oil burners in the country now, and another million will soon be in using, saving trouble for the hand that shakes the furnaces, throws in the coal and rakes out the ashes. For heating, oil compared with coal, is like water from a faucet compared with water from an outside well.

But don't sell your oil stocks if they are sound and well established dividend payers. The flowing wells will not flow always, and the wise companies will conserve their oil; will later, sell for $8 a barrel what they sell now for 90 cents. Then there will be the usual too late, wailing over our national improvidence.

RUBBER DEALER WEDS MARY HAY

Richard Barthelmess' Divorced Wife on Second Honeymoon.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Broadway friends of Mary Hay, the dancer and divorced wife of Richard Barthelmess, screen star, were surprised to learn today that she has been married again. She slipped away to Greenwich, Conn., Saturday night and was married by a justice of the peace to Vivian Beath, 21-year-old British rubber dealer of Singapore, India.

Now she plans to quit the stage and live in far-off Singapore. Before she leaves the country she hopes to persuade Barthelmess to give up their four-year-old child, Mary Hay Barthelmess, whose custody was awarded six months a year to each of the parents. A divorce was granted to Barthelmess and his wife in Paris on January 15, last.

Mr. and Mrs. Bath planned to start for the west today or tomorrow and will sail for Singapore on April 28. Before she departs for India the bride will see her former husband about the child.

Richard Barthelmess and his wife broke off relations last November after quarrelling on the sidewalk in front of a night club in New York. Soon divorce papers were filed in Paris.

Miss Hay appeared in one motion picture, and has played in vaudeville as the dancing partner of Clifton Webb. She also appeared in several musical comedy hits. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frank M. Caldwell of New York and Washington.

White Slave Traffic In Hungarian Cities Brings Many Arrests

MISKOLCZ, Hungary. — Several score of men, some of them government officials, have been arrested here on charges of operating a white slave traffic center. The chief of the government employment bureau, Dr. Ferencz Szikszay, who was a prominent leader of the social life of the city, was imprisoned as the chief of the gang.

The arrests have made a considerable stir and resulted in further disclosures that hundreds of girls are sent out of Hungary every year by white slavers who appear to be well organized. Dr. Szikszay opened an employment office here under government protection and in this way got ahold of the girls, mostly from the country, whom he desired. The investigations are being continued and the government at Budapest has promised to clean up all traces of the traffic in the country at once.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our most heartfelt thanks to Rev. Fowler, choir, friends and neighbors for the kindness shown us in the illness and death of our dear father, John B. McKinnon. We also wish to thank the friends who sent the beautiful flowers.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 11.—Speculative buying of railroad and motor stocks resulted in further gains in active stocks in these groups in the first hour. Independent steel shares were inclined to join the upward procession, while coppers and oils, particularly the latter, declined fractionally under selling pressure.

First reports of the new week contained very favorable comparisons of first quarter business compared with the same period last year. Steel, automobile, manufacturing and building construction records were above expectations, stimulating the hope and belief that the accomplishments of the whole year 1927 might measure up favorably with last year. Call money was unchanged at 4¼ per cent.

Stocks of the Southwestern-merger group sold in good volume around the best prices of the current movement, on reports that L. F. Loree and his associates would shortly announce the basis for the amalgamation of important railroads in the southwest. New York Central, and Atchison led the dividend rails into slightly higher price territory.

U. S. Steel and General Motors repeated their spectacular advance to new high record prices. Steel's monthly report of unfilled tonnage showing a drop of only about 44,000 tons in March, was enthusiastically received in Wall Street, while General Motors received its principal stimulus from forecasts of favorable earnings in the first quarter of the year.

Chrysler was the leader of the low-priced motor group, advancing sharply to the year's high price of 46 in heavy trading. Studebaker and Willys Overland were firm, while Pierce Arrow scraped bottom on heavy offerings. Mercantile stocks were steady and sugar stocks firm.

balance stresses the construction of the footwalks takes place simultaneously on both sides of the river, and on both the river and land side of each tower at once. Incidentally, it is pointed out, this work calls for great daring and skill on the part of the bridge builders, but that all goes with that kind of a job, which often presents more spectacular performances than are ever witnessed in a circus

Parallel wire cables of sufficient strength to carry the load that is planned for the new Hudson river bridge would have to be 37 inches in diameter each, and would contain approximately 27,000 individual quarter-inch wires. They would have a carrying strength of 330,000 tons each, as compared with 125,000 tons for the cables on the Delaware river bridge and 45,000 tons for those on the Brooklyn bridge. The Delaware bridge cables are 30 inches in diameter and contain 18,000 of the quarter-inch wires.

Financing the Hudson structure was no small problem. The states of New York and New Jersey first provided $300,000 for the initial surveys and studies, and then they appropriated $5,000,000 each to put the enterprise on a sound basis. This $10,000,000 is in the nature of a loan and is to be repaid to the states with interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

The first block of bonds of $20,000,000 out of an authorized issue of $60,000,000 was placed on the market last December and sold readily at a price such that makes the money cost only a fraction more than 4 per cent.

The bridge, economically, will first of all ease off the water blockade that has almost entirely prevented highway communications between New York city and northern New Jersey and southern New York state. Then, too, it is expected to stimulate such communications all the way from Delaware Water Gap to New England, and to enable tourists to avoid present city traffic jams and congestion on the ferries.

CATARRH VERY COMMON IN CENTRAL STATES

World's Tonic Banishes It Despite Climatic and Other Conditions That Promote the Disease.

It seems that no other country furnishes the percentage of Catarrhal cases per thousand population that is found in America. Statistics show that the central states have a very much higher percentage than the average. It is estimated by competent authorities that approximately three out of five persons in this section suffer from Catarrh in one form or another. It is probably that most of these cases have tried various so-called remedies with very little, if any, relief. There is, however, one sure, certain relief for the majority of catarrhal conditions, the systemic treatment—World's Tonic.

Usually Catarrh starts first in the head, nose or throat and the constant dropping of the discharge into the throat, where much of it finds its way into the stomach, sets up catarrhal inflammation and distress there and in the bowels. World's Tonic cleanses the sores and heals them, stops the poisonous discharge, helps to purify the blood and stimulates the various organs to their natural functions of elimination of waste and poisonous matter from the system.

Let the World's Tonic druggist tell you all about it. Sold by Carnahan's also Brannon, Wellsville, and all other good druggists. (240.)

'Fourth Commandment' Is Picture at American.

As the outcome of one of the strangest stories of mother love ever told little Wendell Phillips Franklin received this first chance before the camera and made good.

The story is Belle Bennett's. Its startling climax came to light during the filming of Emory Johnson's production, "The Fourth Commandment," the Universal production at the American theatre today.

Seventeen years ago Billie was born. His mother, Belle Bennett, and her husband, were struggling players, young and untried. Fearing that public knowledge that Belle Bennett was married and a mother would spoil her chances of a great career, the secret was kept.

Years passed and Belle Bennett attained fame though a martyr to the cause of career and public approval.

Then came the time, a year ago, when Billie became ill. His mother rushed to his bedside and claimed him. Billie lived to know that his mother had become a great actress and to tell of the little chubby-faced boy who had become attached to him.

This is the month when you are specially peeved when you find that your umbrella is at the other end of the line.—Bellefontaine Examiner.

IRENE RICH IN FILM HIT

"Don't Tell Wife" Screen Offering at Strand.

Irene Rich, in her new Warner Brothers' picture, "Don't Tell the Wife," which comes to the Strand theatre today, is cast as a sophisticated young Parisian matron, who, in a series of whimsically swift and amusing happenings finds her beloved and gallivanting husband has been led in a direction that is nearly astray through succumbing to the almost international preference for blondes.

The blonde in the case is Lilyan Tashman, the same Lilyan who was the lady who lived across the street in Lubitsch's "So This Is Paris." In "Don't Tell the Wife," she plays an unmarried flirt, whose preference seems to be for men who are already married.

In this case her bright and roving eyes light upon Huntly Gordon. But it is not her eyes that set him aflame. It is when he sees her blonde hair that he realizes there's a dance in the old boy yet. So they go and dance.

William Demarest, as a young man about Paris, which is decidely more than a young man about town in any other town, begins to interest the wife (Irene Rich). They hit it off so well together that they decide upon a Paris divorce, for even Parisians get divorced in Paris.

It is at this juncture that the short, fat and merry Otos Harlan steps into the picture in the role of a Parisian Magistrate. He decides to fix things for everybody. And he does. The result is that he takes a divorce and then the two couples slip off on their honeymoons before he can stop them.

It is here, in the delicate handling of an extremely delicate situation that the Gallic finesse of the Austrian director, Paul Stein, saves the situation. He has turned out a comedy of rothy fun.

An American has just started an dectric street car line and power plant in Osijek, Slavonia.

A coal company will start a plant o supply electric light and power to he city of Valdivia, Chile.

FARMERS' BACK HOUSE MEASURE

Proposal for Stringent Dog Law Pending in Legislature.

Few bills pending before the present legislature have been followed with as much interest by farmers as the present proposal for a more stringent dog law according to a message received by the Columbiana county farm bureau from L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio farm bureau federation. Several proposals for such legislation have been combined into the Hodson bill No. 164 which has the support of a large group of farm organizations, humane societies and health authorities.

The bill is of particular interest to sheep men, according to Palmer, who is also president of the Ohio Wool Growers' Cooperative association, as the sheep population of the state has decreased from 3,090,000 in 1910 to 2,010 0000 in 1925, due in large part, it is alleged, to the ravages of dogs. It is also of interest to both city and rural residents as a health measure to prevent the spread of disease, particularly rabies, Palmer says.

"Ohio has more purebred sheep flocks than any other state with fine wool," according to Palmer. "The largest decrease in sheep population has been in the hill counties where sheep are the most profitable live stock. Thirty Ohio counties failed to pay their sheep claims last year due to excessive losses."

The proposed law provides for a dog warden, appointed by county commissioners, to impound unlicensed dogs and investigate claims of dog damage. All license fees, under its provisions will be placed in a dog and kennel fund of the county treasury. Claims will be paid from this fund. After a reserve of $5 000 is attained and all claims paid, balances may be transferred to other funds.

MANY DAMAGE CASES PENDING

During the present term of common pleas court, the city of Salem will be called upon to defend 27 civil actions now pending against it, wherein not less than a total of $135,000 damages is being sought by these plaintiffs. In the majority of instances the plaintiffs seek $5,000 damages from the municipality, but several petitions now on file ask for $10,000 damages.

Last year a number of similar damage actions against the city of Salem were settled out of court by way of compromise. Never before in the history of the county has one municipality been called upon to defend so many civil actions for damages has has the Salem corporation. These damage actions have been in progress ever since the municipality went through a typhoid fever epidemic a number of years ago.

"Decision Day" Planned.

"Decision Day" will be observed Easter Sunday by the Lisbon Christian church for all denartments and Bible school above the primary department. Wednesday evening a "Resurrection Story" in the nature of a pageant will be given.

PERSONAL TAX RETURNS FILED

Hundreds of personal tax returns are being filed daily with the county auditor's office, although but three weeks remain before tax listing day. Over 15,000 personal tax returns are to be filed, but less than half this number has been returned to the Lisbon office.

The return of the individual must be sworn to, and in the event this is not done when the return is received 50 per cent of the valuation listed upon the return will be added to the total.

Radios must be included in the list of musical instruments. The returns will also be checked against the automobile records of the county, and where discrepancies are located, the tax returns will be corrected to correspond with the official records of bills of sale, sworn statement of ownership, and applications for license plates.

TEMPLARS WILL ATTEND CHURCH

Salem Commandery, Knights Templar, will attend the morning service at the Lisbon Presbyterian church next Sunday morning in a body. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Peter W. Macaulay, who is also a member of this body.

Rev. Percy Gordon, D. D., officiated at the morning service in church yesterday, when the congregation made the request that the relations existing between the Rev. Mr. Macaulay and the congregation be dissolved by Mahoning presbytery.

A marriage license has been issued to Clifford T. Morris of Wellsville and Miss Elda Payne, also of Wellsville. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. Charles N. Church.

Guy Lucci and Alice Cooney, both of East Liverpool, were granted a marriage license Saturday afternoon and were married at Lisbon by Justice M K. Zimerman.

These licenses were the only ones issued by Probate Judge Lodge Riddle during last week.

Tell him that the quick easy way to put pounds of solid flesh on his bones is to take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Tell him it's the modern way to take nasty tasting, stomach unsetting cod liver oil—that these tablets are rich in vitimines and besides helping him to fill out his flat chest and sunken cheeks and neck that the vitalizing vitimines in McCoy's will make him strong and vigorous and give him more ambition.

Tell him that he can get 60 tablets for 60 cents at any druggist anywhere and that if he isn't delighted after a 30 day test he can have his money back.

Nature Doesn't Punish Her Any Longer

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful—little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Constipation! How to Keep Bowels Regular

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 17 years, it seemer cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils

While he knew that constipation was the cause of enarly all headaches, biliousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

16 PILOTS, EIGHT NEW ONES, FACE WIRE FOR 1927 FLAG RACE

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Professional pessimists, who like to think that the siege of Troy was a "carry" in order to make the thing look good, will be trampled under foot in the rush toward the turnstiles tomorrow by a quarter million souls, faithful always to their annual tryst with the game that is as much a part of America as Bartholdi's liberty and the corner cigar store. Major league baseball, buffeted and abused through a winter of discontent, is to have its official opening with 24 hours and, regardless of whether its feet be clay or white lead, America is willing to line its pockets with gold in order to renew a friendship that will endure through the ages.

Here in New York, Ty Cobb, a central figure in a mid-winter scandal that came to nothing, will be shown in the uniform of the Philadelphia Athletics for the first time since he entered the major leagues 22 years ago. With him will be Eddie Collins, returning to the scene of his early fame; Zach Wheat, almost a hallowed figure now; Joe Boley and Dudley Branom, a pair of $50,000 minor leaguers and probably the most interesting ball club since the days of the old Orioles.

The co-attraction will be Babe Ruth, most famous of all players, and the New York Yankees, the playing-through champions, and the thing is a push-in from a box office standpoint. Only the world series itself has witnessed a bigger advance sale than the local opening.

The first reservation for the Washington premiere arrived the day after Tris Speaker was purchased by the Senators and today you couldn't keep the boys away with a shot gun. So much for one of the 1926-27 scandals that had Speaker on the petard with Cobb.

The other scandal named a score or more of players but back-fired so badly that the identity of many of the accused has been forgotten, even in the few short months intervening.

For baseball, always a favorite of the fates, also enjoyed a million dollars worth of advertising that was far less adverse and far more wholesome. Babe Ruth, for instance, was signed with a flare and a flourish to a $70,000 a-year contract. Rogers Hornsby, manager of a world's champion, was traded to New York and only two days ago did he condescend to accept $116,700 for his stock in the Cardinals with resultant publicity.

Eight new managers took charge of teams in both leagues, Bill Carrigan, famous as Fenway Park itself, coming back to Boston and the town where he won world's championships. Other new ones are Bob O'Farrell with the Cardinals; Dan Howley with the Browns; Donie Bush with Pittsburgh; Ray Schalk with the White Sox; George Moriarty with the Tigers; Stuffy McInnes with the Phillies and Jack McCallister with the Indians. It is a matter of record that a new manager never kept an addict away from an opening game.

In fact, granted favorable weather, it would surprise no one if the teams played to capacity, or thereabout, in each of the eight favored cities. The Phillies generally are picked to go nowhere very rapidly; yet with Hornsby and Eddie Roush, new Giants, and John McGraw celebrating his silver jubilee as manager, as the headliners and Philadelphia's established loyalty to the National league club, no customer will suffer from loneliness at the Baker stadium.

The New York and Washington openings cannot miss; neither can Cleveland's inaugural with the White Sox, nor the champion Cardinals invasion of Chicago against a rising young ball club that may live to knock them all off. Boston, of course, will support its Braves against the Dodgers as only Boston can and St. Louis, convinced by the Cards that there is a Santa Claus, will be out there to tell the Browns and Tigers that anything is possible now.

The Pirates and Reds, pre-season favorites, will be another "natural" for the Cincinati opening; in fact, Redland field probably would have to have rubber walls to accommodate every addict who has the price and the inclination to part with it.

It is customary to exude optimism at this stage of the proceedings and the writer has duly done so. However, the effort involved was negligible. There isn't a doubt at the moment that more interest is being manifested in baseball than at any time within memory.

East Liverpool Cage Teams Dominate Washington Tourney

Centrals, Buckeyes Win Championships

Folks in western Pennsylvania have heard rumors of East Liverpool's prowess in the world of basketball. Saturday the rumors were verified when East Liverpool teams won two-thirds of the three-way Tri-State tournament at Washington Y. M. C. A., the Centrals copping the Junior division championship and the Buckeyes pulling down laurels in the intermediate class. A quint composed of Pitt players won the senior division play.

The Centrals opened up with a 12 to 6 victory over the Steubenville "Y," field goals by Snape and Pierson and fouls by Snape and McNutt accounting for the points.

In the second game, Ullon and Bailey of Waynesburg defeated the Washington "Y" Midgets and then won from the East Liverpool Centrals. Central was outscored in the first period, 15 to 2. In the third quarter the battle started and when the final whistle blew, it was found that Central had lost, 29-27. However just as Coach "Chuck" McConville was pulling the last reluctant member of his squad from the water of the swimming pool after the game, it was discovered that Waynesburg had played a man who was over age and they were forced, consequently, to forfeit their games to the Midgets and the Centrals.

The Centrals then took over the Midgets, 21 to 19, their 16 to 10 lead at the half turning the trick.

With the championship as their goal Central went out in the final and walked all over Canonsburg First Ward, 39 to 3, with Snape and McNutt leading the attack.

Three East Liverpool teams played in the intermediate division, the Buckeyes winning over the field, including the Bulger Drugs and the Roselawns.

The Buckeyes first defeated the Washington City Little Five, 25 to 13, then the Eurekas, 25 to 18; the Steubenville "Y" five, 33 to 14, and finally the Wellsburg "Y," 32 to 22.

Four members of the Centrals were selected on the Junior division all-tournament squads — McNutt being picked for center and Ashbaugh guard on the first team, and Snape, forward; Simpson, guard, on the second team.

First team.		Second team.
Pierson, Cen.	F.	Snape, Central
Siegal, Steu.	F.	Delbriso, Can.
McNutt, Cen.	C.	Louch, Midgets
Ashbaugh, Cen.	G.	Simpson, Cen
Graft, Midgets	G.	Bucci, Can.

McNutt was named as the outstanding player, in addition to being the high point man with 16 field goals and two fouls, a total of 34 points. Central's team play, as a whole, was the outstanding feature of the Junior division. McNutt to Pierson to Snape with McNutt following in was the secret of their success. Short, snappy passing and accurate shooting by any of these three accounted for most of the scoring. The guarding of Simpson and Ashbaugh on the other hand also was a big feature. In fact, their willingness to work together at the sacrifice of personal glory won them all places on the all-tourney squads.

Three members of the Buckeyes won places on the intermediate division all-tourney squad, including Wildblood at forward, Bailey at center and Skidmore at guard. Lewis, of Wellsburg, at a forward, and Turley, also of Wellsburg, at a guard, were the other two members of the all-star combine.

Wildblood was unanimously picked as the outstanding player, although Davis, who was captain of the Wellsburg high school team last year, outscored him. It was Jimmy's willingness in team play and his ability to work into the passes that won him the honor. Bailey outjumped his opponents consistently and played a steady floor game. Skidmore's guarding during the tourney and more particularly in the last game when he covered Davis like a tent won him a place.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 11.—George Moriarty and his Tiger band reached here today in time to try on their new uniforms and get a little practice in Sportsman park preparatory to opening the pennant campaign game for the Tigers tomorrow.

Moriarty is far from satisfied with his club. "In fact I am more pleased with the physical condition of the men than their playing," he said.

SHADE-KRUG BOUT CHICAGO FEATURE

CHICAGO, April 11.—Although the Dave Shade-Phil Krug ten-round bout is billed as the main event on Jim Mullin's all-star card at the Coliseum tomorrow night, the lightweight encounter between Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" and King Tut of Minneapolis, is attracting wide interest and threatens to outshine the windup event.

Petrolle is favored by local fans to win over Tut, who is making his first appearance in a local ring. Despite his successes on the Pacific coast and in the region of the Twin Cities, Petrolle followers expect the "Express" to knock the King colder than this ancient namesake.

All four principles in the feature events have been training faithfully and are said to be in top notch condition. On Shade's showing against the venerable but clever Krug, is said to depend his chance for a championship bout with Mickey Walker here this summer.

Pin Teams Meet In Title Match

Liberty Dux Tourney to be Held Next Week.

Turk Nash and Bankers quints of the Liberty Business Men's duckpin league, winners of the first and the second halves, respectively, of the season's play, will clash tonight in a three-game series to decide the championship.

The Liberty's duckpin tournament scheduled to get under way next Monday night. Singles and doubles will be rolled. All entries are to be in by Saturday midnight.

UHLE MAY START FOR CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, April 11.—Back on their own reservation, the Cleveland Indians today will engage in a final pre-season practice at Dunn Field Big George Uhle, the American league's premier pitcher in 1926, who will probably start on the mound for Cleveland Tuesday in the opening game with Chicago, visited the home lot Sunday and whizzed a few across the plate, while his teammates were dropping their last exhibition game of the season to the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati.

The White Sox, led by Manager Ray Schalk, arrived in the city Sunday night. Ted Lyons, well known jinx of the Indians, will probably be Schalk's choice to start the harling for Chicago Tuesday.

The craze for lawn tennis which has sprung up during the last few years in Berlin is evidenced by the elaborate preparations that are being made for the celebration of "Tilden Week" in May, when William T. Tilden, the great American player, and his trouble of racquet wielders are to engage in exhibition and tournament play in the German capital.

Elks Defeat Rauhs Here In Hot Clash

In a sizzling, red hot encounter that gave over 400 local basketball fans a double attraction—basketball and the sport that made the Marquis of Queensberry famous—the East Liverpool Elks defeated the Enoch Rauh club, runner-up to the champion Lafayette five in the Allegheny county league, at the high school gym Saturday night, 52 to 43.

Both clubs waged battles as brilliantly offensive as any seen on the local court this season, the combined scores reaching almost to the century mark.

And in the final period, so fiery became the contenders, with victory liable to be decided either way with a flurry of field goals, several of the rivals resorted to fisticuffs. On one occasion part of the crowd was out on the floor, but animosities subsided just as quickly as they flared up and the game was finished with an olive branch waving triumphantly in the beak of the dove of peace. The dove had a hard night but was still in the ring at the final bell.

The Rauhs had a fast, scoring team, but insisted on roughing it up on the scrimmages and blocking and holding too frequently, and finally, when Guard Minehart, pal of Tony Paulsey's, went down with a sock in the solar plexus, the boys insisted on pairing off and deciding the issue by way of the manly art.

However, exclusive of the interruptions in the final period, the game was the most flashy exhibition of the latter part of the season.

It saw the return of Ray Wilde to the lineup. Wilde was out of a uniform for several weeks as a result of an injured ankle, and he still favored the ankle in Saturday night's clash, but at that managed to work into the team play in his own inimitable way and he hobbled for a trio of field goals during the festivities.

In the absence of Captain Simon Anderson and Charles McConville, both being unable to take part in the game, Dick Larkins, high school lad, and Dave Shupe were assigned to the guard posts. Dick has broken into fast company in only the last couple of weeks, but is taking to it like a duck to water and put up a great game in the first half. In the second he was replaced by Minehart of Paulsey's Campbell five, and Minehart proved a real tower of strength in the defense end of the court when the milling was most torrid.

Shupe played his regular game and —that, it chances, is good enough for any outfit in this league.

Big Tony, at center, was "on," especially in the final half when he dropped in five field goals.

Nate Lippe was gall and wormwood to his former teammates. They saw him loop the leather eight times during the fray, four in the first half and as many in the second. With four fouls more, Lippe led the scorers with a total of 20 points. Paulsey was next with 14.

The visitors were strongest in the first half when every man on the squad, save Paris at center, scored at least a couple of field goals, Berman bucketing four. The Rauh's guard plays were working nicely, Marx and Alman coming up the court for five two-pointers. After that the Elks bore down on their check-up system and the stuff was off.

The Antlers led by a score of 13 to 11 at the end om the first quarter, but the Rauhs overcame the slim margin and took the front position at the half when the count stood 26 to 24.

The Elks have been a notoriously strong third-quarter team during the entire season and they insisted on being themselves Saturday night.

When Referee Buxton sent them into action at the start of the third period the Antlers dropped in three field goals scarcely before their playmates of the evening could draw a man-sized breath.

The visitors took time out and held a conference. They decided that this business must go no further. However, they forgot to tell the Elks, and so the scoreboard numerals changed rapidly as Powell's pasers hung up 19 points, almost two a minute.

The score was 43 to 33 when the intermission arrived, and in the concluding quarter, the Rauhs scored 10 points and the locals nine.

What's What in Washington

COMMERCE SECRETARY HOOVER KNOWS HOW TO PASS HIS JOBS ON

WASHINGTON, April 11. — Secretary of Commerce Hoover's lucky in being a super-executive, who knows how to pass his jobs—

HERBERT HOOVER

Yes, jobs. Plural. Very much so.

—who knows how to pass his jobs' details along to subordinates, to attend to and worry over, leaving nothing but the responsibility to fall on his shoulders.

Hoover just loves responsibility.

If he were a detail man, the prodigious number and variety of his duties would drive him cuckoo.

Not all the rest of the cabinet members put together have so many different kinds of work wished onto 'em. Each has a strenuous stunt, in its way, but it's a one-man stunt, not an army of specialists—and no two alike, either.

Hoover has to be a past master of nearly everything.

"Oh," Secretary of the Navy Wilbur may exclaim:

"I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo's'n tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Quite a few lines of endeavor for Secretary Wilbur to qualify as an expert in. But it will be noted that they're all nautical, with the possible exception of the cook, and even he undoubtedly is a sea-cook.

JUST so all up and down the line. Secretary of War Davis heads a big department, but it's purely military. Harry New has nothing to stew about but the postoffice. Nobody asks Attorney General Sargent to be anything but a lawyer or Secretary Kellogg to be anything but a diplomat. There's nothing to distract John J. Davis' attention from labor problems.

Bill Jardine concentrates solely on farming and Hoover helps him with that. Besides Indian affairs, Secretary of the Interior Work once had patents and mining to look after, but Hoover took the patent office and bureau of mines off his hands and included them in his own department.

Secretary Mellon's the only other man who has an extra burden to bear—besides being financial dictator. Prohibition enforcement.

BUT geewhillikens!—look at Hoover!

As secretary of commerce, it's his business to keep the country prosperous. He has to look after foreign as well as domestic trade.

He's a scientist. He weighs the earth and he weighs atoms. He's an electrician. He's an oceanographer, He's a chemist.

He has charge of lighthouses and navigation and steamboat inspection.

He's radio czar — all the more so since the creation of a radio commission which can't function without him.

He promotes aviation, takes the census, issues patents, encourages salmon fishing in Alaskan waters, develops rubber production in the tropics, and, as head of the bureau of mines, is the government's fall guy whenever there's a coal strike.

He's a member of the board of the Smithsonian Institution and the Council of National Defense and the National Screw Thread Commission and the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the Inter-American High Commission and the World War Foreign Debt Commission.

THESE simply are a few of the more obvious things Hoover has assimilated into his department of commerce. It's at least twice as large a department as when he was appointed head of it.

He can't see anything without wanting to manage it.

It's a commonplace in Washington that there will be but one cabinet member in a few years, if Hoover keeps his portfolio, and he'll be it, as secretary of everything.

Hudson Super-six On Display Today At Buckeye Garage

One of the most talked of cars of the year—the Hudson Super-Six—is receiving special showing at the salesrooms of the Buckeye Motor Company, Hudson-Essex distributor. Now that the spring season is here, this car is repeating the hold on public attention which it scored when introduced the first of this year. Scores of motorists are looking over its interesting points.

"In appearance and value as well as performance," said Ray Birch, "the brilliance of the new Hudson-Six it is equaled only by the costliest cars With the new Hudson you will never feel that the slightest effort is exerted by the motor in traveling as you wish, whether for short, swift spurts or sustained all-day runs.

"You round curves safely, due to the new low center of gravity. You do not shimmy. At all speeds, it is the easiest and safest driving and riding car in Hudson history. It is simply superb. The Super-Six principle is freed to the limit

"Yet with all its marvelous power, comfort, and performance—unlike anything American motorists have known—it is economical to operate. On road trips we have averaged from 15 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline and the car was being newly broken in, having just come from the factory when we started."

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

What Pretty Girl Did For Sick Stomach

Miss E. Rich of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I don't know what the cause was, but every few days my stomach would feel all bloated up with gas, my appetite was poor and I felt sick to my stomach—to say nothing of headaches.

"I never thought of using Carter's Little Liver Pills until nothing seemed to help. After using Carter's I felt relieved at once—and now as soon as my stomach 'talks' back I answer with Carter's and have the last word."
